SHOCKING CAUSEWAY BAY STABBING AFFRAY

TAIPO-RD. CYCLE
SMASH

GRAVE INJURY TO PORTUGUESE

DIVE OVER BANK

Serious injuries were received by Mr. C. M. da Silva yesterday morning when he was heavily thrown from a motor cycle on which he was riding pillion along the Taipo Road, near the Kowloon Reservoir.

Mr. da Silva, who resides at 23, Jordan Road, was on the pillion of motor cycle No. 185 which was being driven by Mr. Eduardo da Silva, of 66, Parkes Street. When near the 4½ milestone the machine ran over the side of the road.

The driver was not injured, but his companion received a fractured skull and is now lying in serious condition at the Kowloon Hospital.

ANOTHER SMASH.

On Sunday evening a public motor car travelling towards Kowloon along the Castle Peak Road, near the married quarters of the Laichitok prison ran over the bank, a woman passenger receiving serious injuries.

The car was being driven down the hill near the prison when the driver lost control and the vehicle, after running over the bank, overturned. Ho Kum-ying, of 14, Fuk Chung Hong village, Tsun Wan, received a fractured skull and broken fingers.

The car was badly damaged, but the driver escaped without injury.

GERMANY'S ECONOMIC PLAN

LOWER PAY: MORE EMPLOYED

LATEST DECREE

Berlin, Sept. 5.
The Chancellor's plans for reducing unemployment in Germany apparently contemplate the spreading of existing unemployment over a larger number of persons by reducing the wages of those at present in work.

Relief of the smaller industries, as well as a reduction of unemployment, is among the principal aims of the latest emergency decree, signed by President Hindenburg to-day, embodying the Cabinet's programme for the revival of economic life.

The text of the decree is being issued to-morrow.

The proposals, it is understood, include the simplification and the cheapening of social insurance, permission to vary wages agreements to suit local conditions, a grant of a bonus of 400 marks to employers, for every additional employee engaged.

Permission is also given to lower wages in such cases, but not exceeding twenty per cent. of the standard rates.—Reuter.

GRIM FIGHT WITH CAT-BURGLAR

YOUTH OF FIFTEEN
MURDERED

FOUR OTHERS ATTACKED AND WOUNDED

LEAP INTO STREET

A SHOCKING STABBING AFFRAY OCCURRED
IN A CAUSEWAY BAY FLAT, THE RESIDENCE OF A WELL-KNOWN CHINESE BUSINESS MAN.
IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THIS MORNING.

As the result of a desperate unequal fight with an armed cat-burglar, a lad of fifteen was fatally stabbed, his father was badly wounded and disfigured, an amah is lying at the Government Civil Hospital in a serious condition, and two other women servants were less seriously hurt.

The scene of the sensational affair was the first floor of No. 40, Tung Lo Wan Road, the residence of Mr. Leung Wing-suen, who is a nephew of Mr. Ip Lan-chuen, prominently connected with the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

His oldest son, Leung Sze-sau, a student of fifteen, was sleeping on a settee in the sitting-room, when the intruder appeared at about 4.50 a.m. The shrieking of a parrot is believed to have awakened him, but he was stabbed through the throat and shoulder before he could make a move or raise the alarm.

An elderly amah also heard the parrot's squawk, appeared at the doorway and was struck down by the murderer, who had thrown himself back against the wall. She was badly wounded on the head and back. The amahs and Mr. Leung Wing-suen also aroused appeared one by one and as they arrived, were attacked and wounded. Mr. Leung Wing-suen lost an ear besides suffering other wounds.

POSSIBLE CLUE DISCOVERED

Fear then seems to have gripped the assailant after this grim drama in the darkness and he broke away from Mr. Leung and leaped to the street below from verandah, a drop of from fifteen to twenty feet. He escaped.

Police later found the weapon, an axe-shaped knife of the type used by rattan workers, which may possibly prove a valuable clue. The knife was found in the gutter in the street, having been dropped by the murderer in his precipitate flight.

Mrs. Leung and two small children were the only inmates of the flat to escape the attention of the murderer.

DISTURBED BY SQUAWKING PARROT

The list of casualties follows:

DEAD.

Leung Sze-sau, aged 15, student, son of Mr. Leung Wing-suen, stabbed in the throat.

WOUNDED.

Leung Wing-suen, aged 43 years, never recovered and injuries to face. Not serious.

Chan Ping, aged 47 years, amah, injuries to head and back. Condition may be serious.

Kung Kwan, aged 43 years, domestic servant girl, slight injuries to head.

Kung Shu-hing, aged 20 years, son of Kung Kwan and visitor to the floor, slight injuries to head.

The only person from whom any information could be obtained after the tragedy was Yip Ching, aged 39, the wife of Mr. Leung Wing-suen.

Together with her husband, she was occupying the rear cubicle of the flat while the domestic servants and the two children were sleeping in the middle room. The unfortunate lad who was murdered was in the front room, and was sleeping on the settee.

It is surmised that he was fast asleep when the intruder gained admission to the flat by climbing up the drain-pipe to the verandah from the street.

What occurred in the front room remains a mystery but it is thought the visitor was a cat-burglar and that the boy was aroused from his sleep, alarming the robber, who attacked him.

The bloodstains on the settee and on the floor suggest that the youth was fatally stabbed whilst still lying on the settee and that during a brief struggle with his assailant he fell to the floor.

CAMPAIGN

HEAVY FIGHTING IN NORTH-MANCHURIA.

Harbin, Sept. 6.
The drop in the floods is enabling the Japanese to pursue their campaign for the suppression of the anti-Manchukuo forces.

Fighting has occurred at Fuchin, only sixty-five miles from the Soviet border and also at Koahan, at the foot of the Khingan Mountains. The Japanese claim successes in all engagements, inflicting, they say, heavy casualties with slight losses themselves.—Reuter.

THE COTTON
STRIKE

GOVERNMENT MAY INTERVENE

LETTER SENT TO DISPUTANTS

London, Sept. 5.
The general position in the Lancashire cotton dispute shows no change for the better or for the worse, though reports that the Government will step in to put an end to the dispute have gained force.

It was announced to-day that Sir Henry Betterson, the Minister of Labour, has communicated with both parties. The contents of his letter have, however, not been revealed.

The probabilities are that it offers a suggestion which would permit the operatives to resume work pending the result of further negotiations.

On the receipt of favourable replies to the Minister's letter, an officer of the Ministry will proceed to Manchester.

Premier Returns.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, returned to London from Scotland this evening, and Sir Henry Betterson was among those who met him at the station. Sir Henry travelled with him to No. 10, Downing Street in order to inform the Premier of the latest details in the development of the Lancashire cotton strike.

T.U.C. GRANT.

The Trade Union Congress opened at Newcastle to-day and will remain in session throughout the week. Mr. John Bromley, in his presidential address, criticised the Government's handling of the economic situation and declared the right policy was not to curtail production but to increase consumption.

He denounced an economic policy which lessened the purchasing power of the great body of consumers and said the problem will only be solved by drastic action on the basis of a shorter working day and working week without a reduction of wages. Employment must be equitably shared between the workless and the overworked.

The Congress agreed to make a contribution of £1,000 to the unions engaged in the Lancashire cotton dispute.—British Wireless and Reuter.

MR. TOM WALLS ON A
FORLORN HOPE

(Telegraph Special).

London, Sept. 6.

Despite all the rumours to the contrary, the Derby winner, April the Fifth, will go to the post for the St. Leger, according to his actor-owner, Mr. Tom Walls.

Mr. Walls's decision to run the horse has come as a great surprise to the vast majority of race-goers, the general opinion being reflected in the fact that the horse was not even mentioned at last night's call-over at the Victoria Club.

"April the Fifth leaves Goodwood for Doncaster to-morrow," Mr. Tom Walls announced late last night.

DEFINITELY WELL.

"He is definitely well and I think he is fit. He is running as forlorn hope, but I do not think he will lose prestige and after all, the St. Leger is the St. Leger."

April the Fifth has been undergoing leg treatment at Selby in Sussex after a breakdown during training for the St. Leger.—Reuter

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

It is not difficult for a system player in his bidding to convey to partner definite information regarding the high card tricks that he holds, but no system will take care of freak distribution or the good or bad breaks of a hand.

The following was perhaps the most fortunate breaking hand of the All-American tournament at Cleveland recently.

♦ A-Q-7-3	♦ J-10-9-6	♦ 9-4	♦ K-8-2	♦ K-Q-10-9
♦ J-9-8-7	♦ 10-9-7	♦ 9-6	♦ 8-7	♦ 9-8-7
♦ 6	♦ 7	♦ 6	♦ 5	♦ 6
♦ 5	♦ 4	♦ 5	♦ 4	♦ 5
♦ 4	♦ 3	♦ 4	♦ 3	♦ 4

The Bidding.

South, the dealer, started the bidding with one diamond which West passed. Players requiring one and one-half tricks for a response would also pass a diamond, but the one over one bidder kept the bidding open with the North hand. Some did bid one heart and while they were not anxious, this bid was a forcing bid for partner.

Others preferred to show weakness by bidding one no trump. East passed at all tables. When North bid one heart, South immediately responded with four hearts.

But when North bid one no trump, showing weakness, South in most instances bid two diamonds as a sign-off bid. Then North would bid two hearts to show a long heart suit but no strength and at a few tables South then took the contract to four hearts.

The Play.

Holding a hand as weak as the North hand, you are sure to be a little shaky when partner carries the contract to four hearts, but regardless of any opening that East may make, the declarer will make a small slam.

When the king of clubs was opened by East, North, the declarer, won with the ace and then took the diamond finesse. It held and he led two rounds of trump, then playing the small spade which West won with the ace. This was the only trick that East and West could win and, to the declarer's surprise, perfect breaks had allowed him not only to make his contract, but to make six odd.

Since four was the bid, only 120 was scored for tricks, and as North and South were vulnerable, the game bonus was 500 points.

The two extra tricks at duplicate bridge are scored at their bid trick value, therefore the two extra tricks counted 30 points each, giving North and South a total of plus 680 on the hand.

Mr. Au Yeung had been ill for some time and was admitted to the Young Woo Nursing Home about two months ago, when it was found that complications had set in following influenza.

During the gala night, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. two well-known Russian dancers, Miss Tania Svetlanova and Mr. Alex Salnikoff, made their debut in Hongkong in the Rose Room and gave a masterful and striking exhibition of exceedingly clever dancing from their repertoire, which the large attendance heartily acclaimed.

POLICE INSPECTOR ROBBED.FOUNTAIN PEN STOLEN FOR SECOND TIME

Detective Inspector John Murphy, attached to Police Headquarters, was robbed of his fountain pen whilst he was walking in Wing On Street on Sunday, and at the Police Court before Mr. Schofield yesterday he charged a young Chinese with larceny.

The fountain pen which the officer was carrying in his breast pocket, was stolen once before by a probationer interpreter from his desk in his office at Police Headquarters, and it was not until the thief had been pawned by the thief that it was subsequently recovered.

Yesterday Inspector Murphy was walking in Wing On Street when a District Watchman who had apparently been following the defendant, saw the youth extract the pen from the Inspector's pocket.

Sub Inspector Russell, who conducted the case, informed his Worship that Inspector Murphy was not aware, at the time, that his pocket was being picked.

His Worship: I suppose he (the district watchman) asked Inspector Murphy whether he lost anything?

Inspector Murphy: No, your Worship. He produced the fountain pen and the defendant.

His Worship: I see he is young at the game as well as being young in years. He had no confederate? I suppose nobody jostled you did they?

Inspector Murphy: No, your Worship.

Sentence of three months hard labour was imposed.

Other Cases.

Sentence of six months' hard labour and twenty strokes of the birch was imposed by his Worship on a Chinese who admitted a charge of snatching a purse containing 80 cents from a child which was being carried by its father.

In another case a Chinese was given three months' imprisonment for stealing five cents from the pocket of a pedestrian in Queen's Road, Central while a similar sentence was passed on a Chinese for stealing a purse from a man in Queen's Road, Central. The defendant had been banished for life from Straits Settlements as an undesirable.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 19-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, movie actor, and falls in love with her father about Dan and then takes advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry, for the first time, finds it hard to live with Dan. They take a cheap apartment, and struggle with homework are dismaying. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson, also of the News.

After several weeks, Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but they allow her to accept financial aid from the wife. Mrs. Dixon is stronger and her husband leaves for several months at the seashore.

Just before and during the heat wave, friends invite Cherry and Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry sets out with Pearson in his car.

CHAPTER XXXII

The hot wind whipped Cherry's hat back from her face and she caught the two sides, holding them down bonnet fashion.

"It will be cooler as soon as we get out of town," Pearson told her. He had to raise his voice above the sound of the car.

She smiled at him. "I'm cooler all ready," she said, "just thinking about having a swim. Oh, it will be wonderful to be in the water!"

Swimming was the only sport at which Cherry could feel herself even fairly well skilled. She had learned at school where swimming was a required subject. She had only two strokes and a simple running dive but she loved the water. There were no pools in Wellington except the public ones that were always crowded. She had not had a swim all summer.

"Like to play polo?" Pearson asked.

"I don't know. I've never tried it."

"I'll teach you," he promised, grinning. "Lots of fun. There's a pool at the New Zealand Club. Come along."

back?"

"And face right into the worst of it? No, I think the best thing we can do is keep going. Never can tell about these summer storms. Some times they blow over in five minutes."

"Do you suppose Dan has started?"

Pearson glanced at his watch. "Can't tell. He was waiting for a long distance call when I left, but you needn't worry about Dan. That dad leads a charmed life!"

"I wish we'd all waited and come together," Cherry said.

Pearson gave her a quick glance.

"You're not afraid, are you?" he asked.

She was but refused to admit it.

The rain was falling in big drops now and the sky had darkened rapidly.

Pearson drove without regard for speed limits.

Suddenly the storm burst in earnest. An ear-splitting peal of thunder was followed by flashes of sheet lightning. The rain fell in torrents. Both Cherry and Pearson were soaking wet. It was almost impossible to see through the windshield and the road ahead was like rivulet.

There was another burst of thunder. The girl shuddered and crouched close to the seat as the countryside was illuminated by the blinding lightning.

Pearson drew the car to the side of the road, set the brakes. "We'll get the top up!" he shouted.

It took much tugging and pulling to get the top of the convertible roadster into place. Cherry helped. The wind and rain lashed about her as she struggled with strength she had not known she possessed. Her hat, her hair, every garment she wore was dripping wet.

At last they were inside with the cloth roof over their heads. Pearson turned on the headlights and they were on their way once more.

"Sorry to get you into such a jam," he mumbled.

"But it wasn't your fault."

"We should have gone back," he announced. "Could have made it to some sort of shelter. Wait—I've just had an idea!"

He stopped the car, got out and disappeared for a moment. When he returned he was carrying something that he threw into the seat. "Raincoat," he gasped. "Put it on." It was a man's raincoat, old and soiled, but it was dry. Cherry wrapped the coat about her.

"You're as wet as I am," she protested.

"Never mind about me. I can stand it."

"But you're liable to take a dreadful cold!"

"Well," he said laconically "there's nothing we can do about it except keep on until we come to some place where they'll take us in."

The houses seemed surprisingly far between. It was so dark they could not have seen a building unless there were lights at the windows.

They drove in silence. Cherry was shivering in spite of the coat. It was difficult to see the road ahead. A dozen times the girl was sure they were on the verge of disaster.

It seemed hours before Pearson said, "We're coming to something. There's a light!"

He brushed the rain from the windshield. Ahead through the darkness there was indeed a light. It was close to the road.

"What ever it is they've got to let us come in and get dry," Pearson said. "If there's a telephone we'll call Dan. I don't think any of those cottages at Willow Lake have telephones."

In five minutes they had reached the building. It seemed to be an oil station. Pearson sounded the horn and the door opened, letting out a shaft of yellow light.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

By Joan Savoy.

Whether you are playing bridge at the club, watching a tennis match, or just waiting for someone, you will be—shouldering all the style you can handle if you wear this coloured crepe frock.

The sleeves have proved that it is foolish to take only one trick when there is a whole row of intriguing methods of attracting attention, right at their elbow.

BANISHING THAT "MIDDLE-AGE" BOGEY.

By Joan Beringer.

The downer's bump, the middle-aged spread, and many other boneyes that are the bane of not-so-young women, are considered nowadays to be only unnecessary evils. At a musical display given in London recently an expert showed in a few movements how each disfigurement could be avoided or, if that were too late, remedied.

Many of the exercises demonstrated to us by another expert who among the simplest which we all know of—albeit but now each one has a new significance to slenderize one particular portion of the figure.

For instance, take the elementary exercise of "head raising." At school we looked upon it as the dullest exercise of all—merely a preliminary to the excitements of pinnes and possephine. But, the older women who practise it to-day do so with the consciousness that she is adding grace to her ankles and legs, keeping them slim and simple and allowing her to move with an elasticity which takes years off her age.

Those sleeves, which are unusually large, start with a shirred raglan effect, soon tremendous at the elbow where they are gathered again, and button tightly below the elbow, finishing at a three-quarter length.

Nickle Adorns Belt.

Since lark belts, used on light frocks, succeed in removing an inch or two from the waistline—at least as far as appearances are concerned—this dress chooses a belt of bigger crepe. It is fashioned from the same rough crinkled crepe. The buckle is adorned with nickel, and the buttons are made from it.

The skirt hugs the hips and flares as it nears the hemline.

The costume also comes in pastel shades or white that uses contrasting colour for its decorative effect.

Leaping for Lissomness.

Another exercise for elasticity is to spring, as high as possible, on the same spot, and a variation of this is to give two short springs and then one high one, finishing in a crouching position and then leaping up again.

The "dowager's hump," that lump of flesh at the back of the neck which causes a poked head and often a double chin, requires a good deal of persevering exercise. Standing perfectly straight and swiveling the arms round, each shoulder in turn is good for this.

To lie on the back and pedal with both legs is an exercise which appeals more to youth than to age, but older women are performing it willingly because it is an excellent cure for the spreading waistline. Another remedy for this and for hips is to stand with the arms stretched above the head, and to swing down to the ground, first touching the right foot with the left hand, and then vice versa. Touching the toes sideways is yet another.

This season's fashions do not demand a figure that is as flat as the proverbial board. You must have a slim waist, but it is important not to be too attenuated above this point. Women who are too slim in this respect are told to droop the head forward on to the chest, and then stretch it back as far as possible.

One of the best exercises for bust, shoulders, and neck is to stretch the arms above and slightly in front of the head, with the palms together, and then to swing them down and back until the backs of the hands touch behind the body, keeping the elbows stiff.

To Prevent Stiffness.

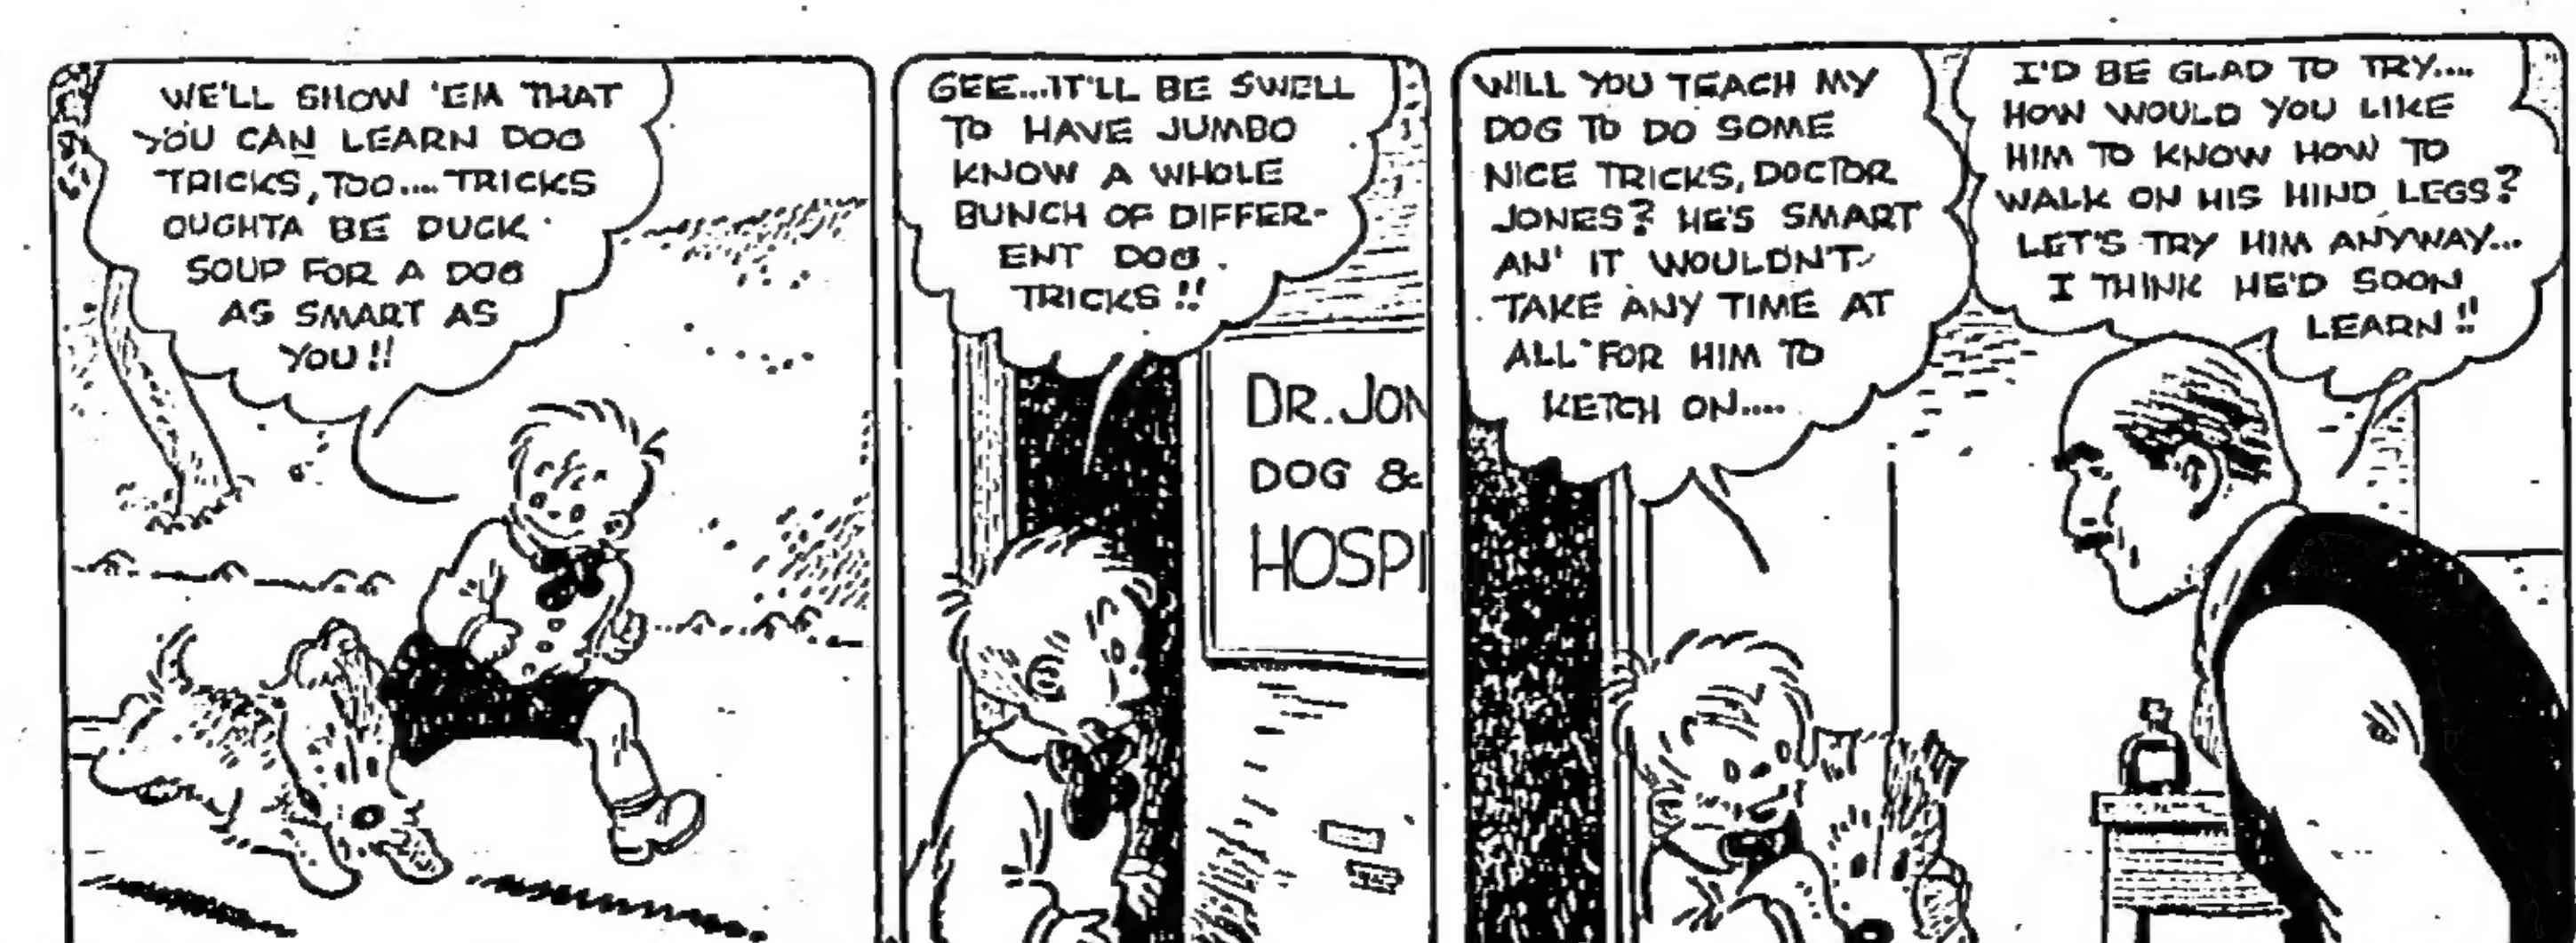

For the stiffness which is frequently the result of an hour of these gymnasium exercises, older women are advised to keep moving as much as possible, and not to lie down and rest for more than a few minutes afterwards.

Many London women intend to do these "middle-aged" exercises themselves, arranging classes at their own houses for themselves and their friends. An important feature is that every exercise, even the simplest, is done to a musical accompaniment.

BRODERIE ANGLAISE.

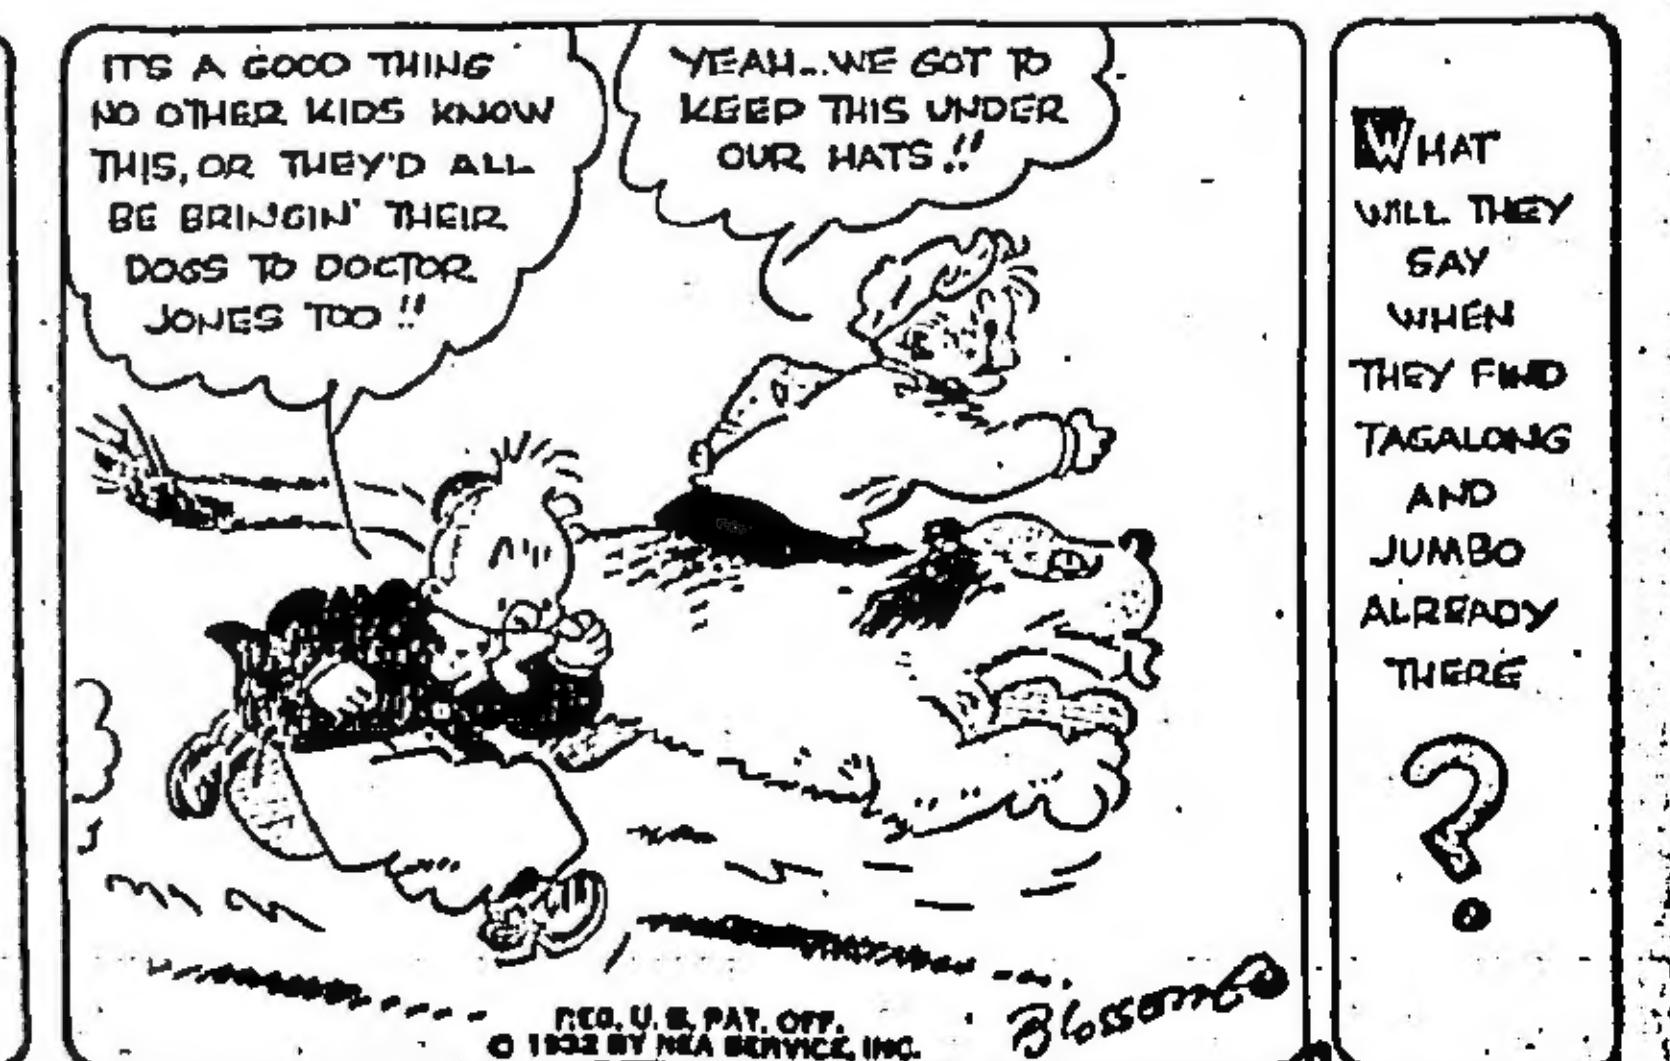

The popularity of broderie anglaise still continues, and dainty, pouch-shaped handbags are the latest models to be made of this material. The bags are made in two sizes and various pastel shades, while necklaces, cut in a similar manner, are designed to carry out the scheme.

HOSPITAL NEEDS

Appointed more than two years ago to make a comprehensive investigation into the hospital and nursing services of the Shanghai Foreign Settlement, a representative Commission has now made its report. The whole ground has been most thoroughly covered, and the recommendations made involve many changes, notably increased hospital facilities, with special reference to the need for better isolation provision in the matter of infectious diseases. It is also suggested that, in view of the financial stringency confronting the Municipal Council, an amusement tax be brought into operation in order to augment revenue, in which connexion it is pointed out that the merits of taxation of this nature are undoubted, and if it were possible to hypothecate revenue from this source exclusively for hospital purposes, it would be likely to meet with a better reception from the general public.

One of the subjects reported on is of particular interest to Hongkong, inasmuch as we have the same problem with which to deal, namely, the treatment of tuberculosis cases. The Committee which had this matter in hand found considerable difficulty in reaching a satisfactory conclusion in regard to accommodation for sufferers from this disease. Thus, while making certain definite recommendations for the provision of isolation hospitals, it considers that the solution of the tuberculous problem can only be reached when some form of co-operation between the three Municipalities, and possibly the Chinese Government as well, is secured, so that a sufficiently large sanatorium may be provided without penalising the International Settlement. The Committee has suggested that, if possible, a sanatorium with 200 beds should be provided, admission to be limited, as far as possible, to genuine residents. At the same time, the view is expressed that, whenever possible, attempts should be made to encourage sanatoria established under private auspices, and, whenever they prove to be of value to the community, these should be recognised by the

If outside the Settlement limits, it was also agreed that much could be done along the lines of the dispensary system, using selected branch offices as a nucleus of the work.

It will be seen that the problem in Shanghai is somewhat complicated by the multiplicity of authorities, it being felt that the treatment of tuberculosis is more a matter for the State than the Municipality, which should normally limit its efforts to diagnosis and prevention. Here in Hongkong, of course, there are not these complications. It is true that we have a large influx of sufferers from other localities, but we are a self-contained community, with a Government possessing authority over the whole Colony. This, of itself, simplifies the matter, although, of course, the problem is not without its special difficulties. It is obvious, however, that there is a very real need for better facilities in the treatment of the disease, which claims fully fifty lives every week. Admittedly, prevention is better than cure, but prevention in this matter involves better housing conditions and a raising of the standard of life. These desiderata will come in due course, but in the meantime we have the sufferers in our midst. Not only in their own interests do we need to see that they are given facilities for sanatoria treatment, but also on the interests of the health of the whose community. Financial considerations may at the moment preclude the possibility of early action, but we should like to feel that the Government is fully alive to the necessities and will, in the not distant future, take some definite steps to bring a ray of hope to the sufferers from this dread disease.

Russian Collectivist Farms

The collective farms in which some 15,000,000 Russian peasant families now are organized represent a huge crucible of social and economic experimentation. Nothing the Soviets have done in recent years is perhaps better worth studying than this attempt to change agriculture from an individualist to a collective basis, because it has been undertaken at a time when farming all over the world is hard hit by the heavy fall in the prices of agricultural products and apparently is obliged to make readjustments to the new conditions created by the use of such large machines as the tractor and the combine. The main object in collective farming has always been to smash the system of small peasant proprietorship and to organise the Russian peasants in co-operative groups which would till large units of land with the aid of modern machinery furnished by the State, the whole enterprise being under fairly definite State control. This idea has been carried into practice ruthlessly. Peasants who were too prosperous on their own holdings to fit into the new scheme were, in the expressive Communist phrase, "liquidated as a class," and the majority of the peasants (62 per cent, at last accounts) have been organised, in collective farms. But there have been continual changes and experiments in the organisation of the farms and the compensation of the members for their labour. For the independent farmer, the very fact of ownership creates a stimulus to work which the member of the collective farm lacks. The private owner punches no time clock when it is a question of getting in the hay before a threatened rain. His own interest makes him see that his horse is properly fed and stabled. In these and other details of farm life the collective farms leave much to be desired. The history of the Soviet collective farms has been the history of a search for stimuli which would effectively replace the lost sense of ownership, of personal possession. The recent tendency has been to split up State and collective farms which had become almost unmanageably large into smaller autonomous units, where personal direction and responsibility could be more easily enforced. During 1930 many collective farms not surrender to the State according to the number of "eaters." In other words, the largest families received the most bread, regardless of how much work they performed. This system has now been strictly forbidden, as conducive to low productivity of labour, and a piecework method of payment, based on the amount and importance of work performed, has been substituted. Now another innovation, the so-called brigade system, is being introduced in the collective farms. Under this system a group of peasants is allotted a given area of land, with the necessary horses and machinery. Whatever is produced will be reckoned to the credit of the brigade. It remains to be seen whether this experiment will restore the sense of personal responsibility that is apt to disappear along with the right of individual land ownership, though the latest reports certainly do not reveal any advance.

Women haven't time for that sort of conversation. They don't do things wholesale. But what they try to sort out when they are talking is why milk cannot come down a penny without butter going up twopence. I'd like to meet the man who could take an intelligent part in a discussion on those lines.

And while men may worry over the problem of how the kauritans are going to balance their budget, women will try to work out how on earth the Browns manage to put up the show they do on Brown's income. Which, believe me, is just as much of a puzzle as working out any nation's budget plans.

Dress, of course, does play a large part in woman's conversation,

but it is by no means the empty chatter that we imagine.

You see, no matter how observant a wife may be, she cannot possibly note all the new things purchased by all the women in the neighbourhood. Therefore she gets the information from her friends.

The object is not just idle curiosity. What she wants to do is to get as long a list as possible

WOMEN TALK ABOUT MORE THAN CLOTHES

MAY EVEN MENTION THEIR HUSBANDS

BY L. C. MOORE

TO tell her husband about; the longer the list, the greater her chance of getting something new for herself.

There is one topic, a favourite with men, which is barred to women. I refer to bosses. There is nothing the average man likes to talk about so much as the way he put old Stick-in-the-mud in his place, and the things he said to him.

Letting off Steam.

Wives cannot indulge in similar stories, because, of course, they have no bosses in these days. So what they do instead is tell one another the things they would like to say to their maids. They must let off steam in some way, because you can't treat a maid like a boss; you've got to be careful. The wise husband never attempts to take part in a chat of this kind; he knows he'd put his foot in it in five minutes.

What women talk about most of all, however, are their husbands. Each one tries to convince the rest that she married the most wonderful man in the world. And she can talk quite convincingly on that topic.

Just a Husband.

The ordinary, common or garden husband, accustomed to hearing quite a different story, may find it difficult to believe this statement, but I assure him it is a fact. Women are queer when they come to discuss the men they have chosen for their own.

Last, however, he may be in danger of getting a swelled head on the strength of it, I had better point out that in precisely the same way each wife will boast that she picked up the best remnant in the bargain basement.

FIRST CATCH YOUR MOSQUITO

By R. T. LEWIS.

Often, these evenings we become conscious of loud buzzing noises in the air.

These may be caused either by an aeroplane returning to Kai Tak or a mosquito.

Should either alight on your person, it becomes a matter for grave concern, and while the crash from the mosquito is perhaps preferable, every precaution should be taken to avoid it.

There are two types of mosquito which should be discouraged. These are the anophelis maculipennis and the theobaldia annulata. With such distinct names recognition should be easy.

Mr. Anopheles Maculipennis is the malaria carrier, and while in his own person he does very little harm, his wife is, as wives often are, the cause of much mischief. The males are vegetarians; the females bloodsuckers of the worst type. The ladies of this class are capable of carrying malaria from one person to another and are the chief cause of its prevalence abroad.

The other kind is dangerous because of the blood poisoning which they set up after biting.

In all cases, these gentlemen prefer ponds; the more stagnant the better. When they see running streams they sing, "Oh flow, why do you go," and fly off. They start life below the surface, taking the plunge when mature and flying away as fully developed mosquitoes.

The essential thing to do when combating the mosquito is to catch him young. In other words prevent them leaving their stagnant pools.

Just Wasting Time.

The method of waiting by the silent pools until the mosquito appears, when it can be hit sharply between the ears and sent back "to the vile depths from whence it sprung, unwept, unhonoured and unstung," or rather unstringing, leads to much waste of time. Neither is it effective to drain the water into neighbour's allotment. The correct method is to pour over the pools a thin layer of parafilm. The larva, when old enough to leave home, rushes to the surface, where it gets so well oiled that it rolls back into the pond and drowns itself.

There is another type of mosquito known as the culex pipiens. This insect is not on the water wagon, but goes into winter quarters in cupboards and dark corners. The treatment in this case is to spray the insects with insecticide while it is having its winter sleep. This may seem cruel to the sensitive humanitarian to kill innocent mosquitoes in their sleep. But it saves them from the dangers of combatting our own enemies.

INDIA REFORM PROCEDURELATEST GOVERNMENT MOVE

London, Sept. 5.
A modification of the India constitutional reforms procedure was announced to-day in the Legislative Assembly, Simla, by the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon.

This modification is designed to meet the circumstances which, owing to resignations and through other causes, have arisen to prevent the assembling of a consultative committee of the Round Table Conference for consideration of questions still outstanding.

Lord Willingdon recalled that the Secretary of State, Sir Samuel Hoare, announced recently that His Majesty's Government, after they had formulated their specific recommendations for Indian constitutional reform, had decided to set up a joint Select Committee of Parliament to examine the proposals in consultation with Indian representatives.

His Majesty's Government had hoped, in the interests of speed, that no further formal discussions would be necessary in London before these proposals were formulated, but they were prepared to arrange for such discussions if the deliberations in India of the consultative committee proved less conclusive than was hoped. Since this announcement, it had become clear it was not possible to look to the consultative committee for the contribution anticipated from it, and consequently, in order to place His Majesty's Government in possession of material they would require for forming their proposals, further discussions in London would be necessary.

Lord Willingdon then announced that the Government had decided to invite a small body of Indians to London, the object of the discussions being to arrive at agreement upon as large a number of points as possible.

As already indicated by the Secretary of State, the Government will subsequently present, for consideration of the joint Select Committee and Parliament, specific recommendations, including the points which have been agreed on and will, of course, support them. British Wireless.

CANTON WATER SUPPLYMETERAGE SYSTEM DECIDED ON

The Canton Municipal Water Supply Commission has decided to introduce the universal meterage system. Plans for the introduction of this system are still under careful consideration, but meantime the Commission has promulgated a number of new regulations relating to water supply calculated to promote the installation of meters. Beginning with October 1, the rate for supplies for metered houses will be reduced from $1.10 to $0.80 per 1,000 gallons. Unless application for the installation of meters is received from houses not so equipped, the rate for water supply charged monthly will be raised from $2.10 to $3.00.

Applications for supplies on the monthly basis will hereafter not be received, and new tenants moving into houses with no meters will have to apply for the installation of meters. Meantime the Commission has invited tenders from firms for the supply of meters.

INTERNATIONAL PARLEYEUROPEAN ISSUES BEING FACED

London, Sept. 5.
An International Conference which is to make recommendations for the economic and final social restoration of Central and Eastern Europe opened at Geneva to-day under the chairmanship of M. Georges Bonnet. Delegates and experts of fifteen Powers are attending the conference.

In his address, the Chairman emphasised the necessity of reaching agreement to make the way clear for the World Economic Conference. British Wireless.

EFFORT TO KEEP PRICES UPSURPLUS PRODUCE TO BE WITHHELD

KWANGSI BANK EXPANSIONHONGKONG OFFICE OPENED

Industrial expansion in Kwangsi, improvement in its educational and communications systems, and success in disbandment, were loudly praised by speakers at the opening ceremony of the Hongkong office of the new Bank of Kwangsi, which was performed by Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, this morning. The function, held at Gloucester Building, was attended by leading merchants, bankers and Chinese Government officials.

The Bank of Kwangsi has its head office in Nanning with paid-up capital amounting to $3,500,000, and has branches in all the leading cities of Kwangsi.

Addressing the meeting, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said the Hongkong office of the Bank had the support financially both of the Government and the people. He was impressed much by the modern organisation, and the experience of its officials, which gave an assurance of success.

MODEL PROVINCE.

The completion of the motor road between Kweilin and Wu-chow, and many roads linking other towns, the success of the disbandment scheme, resulting in the Government cutting down its troops by a half, the official promotion of industries, and the keenness of the Government in encouraging the expansion of education were referred to by the speaker, who added that Kwangsi could rightly be called the Model Province of China with these remarkable developments to its credit. The Government in its budget had succeeded in devoting more funds to reconstruction and education than to expenditure on the army.

Commenting on the opening of the Hongkong office, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said the ideal geographical position of Hongkong and its extensive trade connections with Wu-chow, Nanning and the whole of Kwangsi justified a full representation of the Bank in Hongkong. He concluded by wishing the Bank every success in its career.

The Directors of the Bank, General Li Chung-yen, the Hon. Sir Shou-sou Chow, the Hon. Mr. S. W. Tao, and Dr. C. C. Wu also addressed the gathering.

A CHANCE FOR CHILDRENPRIZES IN INTERESTING COMPETITION

Many children have derived great pleasure and a lucky few very charming prizes from the series of competitions which Messrs. Gillman & Co., have been running in the Hongkong Telegraph during the last few weeks. Each fortnight there are two prizes, a camera for boys, and a bag, or other useful gift, for girls, and those who have been fortunate, or perhaps we should say clever, enough to win them, report how happy they are as a result of their efforts.

Competition No. 4, the prize-winners in which were announced in this paper last Saturday, was particularly interesting, and there were shoals of entries; so many, that judging was very difficult.

The right answer was:

W i t c h e s
R o c k e s
I g n i t i o n
G u a d e l o u p e
H a i t i t a c e

Now that the schools are re-opening, there is an opportunity for children to co-operate in their efforts to solve the competitions, which will be made a little bit more difficult. And parents are not forbidden to offer suggestions.

One competitor, Miss Jenny Felsow, has entered for nearly all the puzzles so far, and her tries have been consistently good. Try to see if you can beat her in Competition No. 5, which was set last Saturday, and will be repeated at the end of this week. Entries must be in by the 16th.

GAR WOOD WINSMISS ENGLAND RETIRES BEFORE RACE ENDS

Detroit, Sept. 5.
Commodore Gar Wood, the American speed merchant, has retained the Hawthorne Trophy for speedboat.

He took the second heat to-day without trouble, as his English opponent, Kaye Don, withdrew before the race had been finished.

Kaye Don's boat, Miss England III, developed engine trouble early in the race, and eventually the engine stopped at the end of the second lap.

In the first heat, run on Saturday, Gar Wood piloted Miss America X, to a matched victory, by the last minute burst after Don had led for four laps. All examination of Miss England III after that race showed that the engine had not functioned pro-rushed into the front where they too were attacked by the intruder.

One of them was heard to shout for assistance and Mrs. Leung, in the back cubicle, aroused her husband. He grappled with the thief, who was using a knife freely. Mr. Leung had numerous injuries inflicted upon him before the intruder finally broke away, rushed to the verandah and jumped into the street.

Mrs. Leung who later recounted her experience to the police was not able to throw any light on the actual happenings, either when the first attack was made or subsequently. She intimated that she was awakened by her maid, Chan Ping, shouting. When she aroused her husband, he picked up a wooden ruler and went outside.

GHASTLY SHOCK.

A scuffle, suggesting that her husband was fighting with somebody, was heard by Mrs. Leung from her cubicle. On finally going to the door of the room she saw a man rush to the verandah. She went into the sitting room and, with a terrible shock, became aware of the ghastly tragedy that had been enacted and saw her eldest son lying in a pool of blood.

The Police were soon on the premises, Inspector H.E. Roger, in charge of the Bay View Police Station, Chief Detective Inspector A. N. Reynolds and Mr. A. R. S. Major being among those to visit the flat.

The murdered boy's body was removed to the mortuary and the injured were taken to the Government Civil Hospital. The servant girl and her sister have since been discharged but the others are still detained for treatment.

HOCKEY DINNERST. ANDREW'S CLUB FUNCTION

The first hockey dinner of St. Andrew's Club was held in St. Andrew's Church Hall last night, when members gathered to usher in the new season. It is hoped to make this function an annual event.

The chair was taken by the President of the Club, the Rev. W. Walton Rogers. A cold dinner was served at 8 p.m.

After the President had toasted H.M. the King, Mr. Henry Kew, on behalf of the Club, rose to toast the "Success of our Hockey Teams." In a very eloquent speech, he dwelt on the sportsmanship and harmony which existed in both the ladies' and men's teams, a combination which was necessary to the success of all team work, and which played no small part in the success of the teams in the past. He expressed the hope that this spirit would be continued and maintained throughout the coming season. He emphasised that most of the players had started the game quite recently and had already proved their skill at the game.

Mr. N. A. E. Mackay, on behalf of the playing members of the Club, suitably replied. He mentioned that through the courtesy of the Royal Corps of Signals the use of a ground had been obtained on the waterfront at Kowloon.

After a most satisfying repast, dancing was continued to close on midnight, when the party broke up. The entering was in the capable hands of the Peninsula Hotel; whilst music for dancing was provided by a Marconiophone Super-heterogram kindly loaned by the local agents, Messrs. Rudolf Wolff and Kew, Ltd., for the occasion.

MAULED BY A LIONHUNTER ATTACKED IN JUNGLE

August 9.
Lieutenant-Commander Combe, son-in-law of Lady Evelyn Malcolm, has been taken to hospital here in a serious condition as the result of a hunting accident. Lieutenant-Commander Combe, while big game shooting in Namquoland, was attacked and mauled by a wounded lion.

His native bearer, who showed great pluck in going to his aid, was killed by the lion. Natives rendered elementary first aid on the spot and carried Lieutenant-Commander Combe for six days to the nearest spot where white aid was available. From there he was brought to Livingstone, where one leg had to be amputated.

Lady Evelyn Malcolm is the wife of Mr. Douglas Orme Malcolm, who is a member of the executive committee of the directors of the Bri-

LAWN BOWLS"GOSCOMBE O'SULLIVAN" CUP COMPETITION

Further progress was made on Sunday in the annual Inter-Departmental Lawn Bowls competition on the Police R.C. green where two matches were decided.

The competition, which was inaugurated some years ago, is open to all Government Departments and is run on the knockout system, the winners being awarded the Goscombe O'Sullivan Cup which was presented for competition by Mr. S. J. Clarke, former Chief Preventive Officer of the Hongkong Government in memory of his brother, Detective Sergeant Goscombe Clarke who was one of the victims of the Gresson Street shooting affair in 1918.

Detective Inspector Mortimer O'Sullivan was also fatally wounded during the pitched battle with armed robbers and in presenting the trophy, Mr. S. J. Clarke fittingly coupled the name of Inspector O'Sullivan with that of his brother.

Mr. Clarke, himself a keen bowler, retired nearly two years ago but still takes an interest in this annual competition.

A RECORD ENTRY.

There is a record entry this year, no less than fourteen ranks having joined the competition. The larger departments have entered more than one rank, being representative of players from different sections. The Public Works Department have three quartettes while the Police are represented by a Scots rank and an English four and the Sanitary Department have entered two teams, one from Kowloon and the other from Hongkong.

CRISIS FEARED.BEFORE LYTTON REPORT REACHES LEAGUE

Shanghai, Sept. 5.

While Chinese circles hope the Lyttton Report will advance prospects for a fair settlement of the Manchurian issue at Geneva, so far it is impossible to find any expression of optimism. In certain quarters it is pointed out that the report is not likely to be placed before the Council before October, whereas events in this part of the world are moving rapidly. Consequently it is feared a serious crisis may be precipitated before the report is considered at Geneva.

To what extent the already tense feeling in China will be aroused when Japan's projected recognition of Manchukuo militarises cannot be foretold, but the certain task of appealing the people is very difficult.—Reuter's Special.

The Scourge of the East.

Malaria has always been, and probably will be for many years to come, the scourge of those who live in the East. The most distressing feature in the obtrusive way in which it remains in the system after attacks have subsided, leaving the sufferer weak and depressed.After a malarial attack, treatment should be undertaken to free the system from the germs that remain and which have become temporarily dormant. This is essential if recurrence is to be prevented.In order to accomplish this the bloodstream which has become depleted and thin should be built up anew, made rich and pure
in order to enable it to destroy the parasites within itself.For this purpose Dr. Williams'
Pink Pills, the world-famous blood
and nerve tonic pills, have proved remarkably efficacious in countless cases. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills comprise a British physician's prescription and, by a process of oxygenization, increase, enrich and purify the bloodstream. In hot countries everywhere they are the ideal tonic for sufferers from malarial and other recurring fevers. All chemists and medicine dealers can supply you. Refuse substitutes.

ANOTHER INDIAN PARLEY:

TO BE HELD IN LONDON
IN NOVEMBER

Simla, Sept. 5.

Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, announced in the Legislative Assembly to-day, that the Government had decided to invite a small body of representatives of British India States to meet in London in the middle of November, with the intention of making an earnest attempt to reach the largest measure of agreement possible upon the important outstanding questions of constitutional reform.

While the status of the Indian representatives would be the same as that of the delegates to the sessions of the Round Table Conference this year, Lord Willingdon remarked that the character of the discussion stage now reached, necessitated a less formal and more expeditious procedure than that adopted during the last two years.

No Relaxation.

The Viceroy, referring to the political situation, said their policy of not relaxing ordinances against civil disobedience as long as the circumstances existed necessitating them had met with a remarkable degree of success and would be continued. The number of those gaoled was diminishing rapidly, and at the end of July numbered 21,000, compared to the maximum in April of 32,500.

The Government had decided to strengthen the general law by the inclusion therein of a considerable number of provisions of the ordinances.—Reuter.

SCHENK'S ARREST

SAID TO HAVE BEEN HELD
SEVENTY-SIX DAYS

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 5. A strange story is told by the sheriff who arrested Clarence Schenk and two other men.

He stated that a private investigator in the Lindbergh case, acting on his own initiative, took prisoner the man Schenk, who is a fish-merchant of Hopewell, New Jersey, on June 19, and brought him to a cabin in the mountains here, where two men armed with revolvers guarded him for 76 days, when the sheriff arrested all three of them.

The Department of Justice is investigating the matter.—Reuter.

A message regarding this incident, dated the 4th inst., stated that the arrest was described as an important one and that Schenk would be handed over to Government officers for questioning.]

GERMANY'S SCHEME

INVESTMENTS FOLLOW NEW TAX SYSTEM

Berlin, Sept. 5.

President Hindenburg has signed further emergency decrees, which will be issued to-night, implementing General von Papen's economic and financial programme for the rehabilitation of Germany, published last week.

The Government's expectation of a special trade and industrial impetus from the system of tax certificates, has induced an increased investment of capital in all kinds of industrial shares. Leading industrialists however, are more reserved as regards the possible extent of the general recovery, such shares, they point out, being about half the revenue from the turnover.

The tax will come from the small private industrialists, who will probably be forced to use the money they are enabled to raise on the certificates, for the payment of taxes in the following year.

Such sums, therefore, will be lost for industrial purposes.—Reuter.

A SMART ARREST.

ROOM BOY COMMENDED BY POLICE MAGISTRATE

In sentencing a Chinese to six weeks' hard labour for stealing a pair of shoes belonging to Mr. Bolton, Room 701 of Gloucester Apartments, Mr. Schofield, at the Central Police Court yesterday commended a room boy on his action in arresting the defendant.

Sub Inspector Russell informed his Worship that Mr. Bolton had put his shoes outside his door to be collected and cleaned by the boy yesterday morning. It appeared that the defendant, who had no right to be in the building, was seen by a boy to collect the shoes.

He was asked what he intended doing with them, and he replied that he was taking them to clean.

The defendant, who the man knew was not employed at the Hotel, was then arrested.

GERMAN CLAIMS

MUSSOLINI SOUNDED ON ITALY'S ATTITUDE

Rome, Sept. 5.

Much excitement was created here this morning at the news that the German Ambassador had held an interview with Sig. Mussolini concerning Germany's demand for equality of armaments.

Speculation is rife as to whether this heralds the Italian backing of Germany's claims.

It is confidently held that Il Duca expressed sympathy with Germany's position, which it is believed has been strengthened by the disappointment over what the Italians regard as a rebuff suffered at Lausanne.—Reuter's Special.

SHOCKING CAUSEWAY BAY STABBING AFFRAY

TAIPO-RD. CYCLE SMASH

GRAVE INJURY TO PORTUGUESE

DIVE OVER BANK

Serious injuries were received by Mr. C. M. da Silva yesterday morning when he was heavily thrown from a motor cycle on which he was riding pillion along the Tai Po Road, near the Kowloon Reservoir.

Mr. da Silva, who resides at 23 Jordan Road, was on the pillion of motor cycle No. 185 which was being driven by Mr. Eduardo da Silva, of 66, Parkes Street. When near the 4½ milestone the machine ran over the side of the road.

The driver was not injured, but his companion received a fractured skull and is now lying in a serious condition at the Kowloon Hospital.

ANOTHER SMASH.

On Sunday evening a public motor car travelling towards Kowloon along the Castle Peak Road, near the married quarters of the Lai Chi Kok prison ran over the bank, a woman passenger receiving serious injuries.

The car was being driven down the hill near the Prison when the driver lost control and the vehicle, after running over the bank, overturned. Ho Kam-ying, of 14, Fuk Chung Hong village, Tsuen Wan, received a fractured skull and broken fingers.

The car was badly damaged, but the driver escaped without injury.

GERMANY'S ECONOMIC PLAN

LOWER PAY: MORE EMPLOYED

LATEST DECREE

Berlin, Sept. 5. The Chancellor's plans for reducing unemployment in Germany apparently contemplate the spreading of existing unemployment over a larger number of persons by reducing the wages of those at present in work.

Relief of the smaller industries, as well as a reduction of unemployment, is among the principal aims of the latest emergency decree, signed by President Hindenburg to-day, embodying the Cabinet's programme for the revision of economic life.

The text of the decree is being issued to-morrow.

The proposals, it is understood, include the simplification and the cheapening of social insurance, permission to vary wages agreements to suit local conditions, a grant of a bonus of 400 marks to employers for every additional employee engaged.

Permission is also given to lower wages in such cases, but not exceeding twenty per cent. of the standard rates.—Reuter.

GRIM FIGHT WITH CAT-BURGLAR

YOUTH OF FIFTEEN MURDERED

FOUR OTHERS ATTACKED AND WOUNDED

LEAP INTO STREET

A SHOCKING STABBING AFFRAY OCCURRED IN A CAUSEWAY BAY FLAT, THE RESIDENCE OF A WELL-KNOWN CHINESE BUSINESS MAN, IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THIS MORNING.

As the result of a desperate unequal fight with an armed cat-burglar, a lad of fifteen was fatally stabbed, his father was badly wounded and disfigured, an amah is lying at the Government Civil Hospital in a serious condition, and two other women servants were less seriously hurt.

The scene of the sensational affair was the first floor of No. 40, Tung Lo Wan Road, the residence of Mr. Leung Wing-suen, who is a son-in-law of Mr. Ip Lanchuen, prominently connected with the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

His oldest son, Leung Sze-sau, a student of fifteen, was sleeping on a settee in the sitting-room, when the intruder appeared at about 4.50 a.m. The shrieking of a parrot is believed to have awakened him, but he was stabbed through the throat and shoulder before he could make a move or raise the alarm.

An elderly amah also heard the parrot's squawk, appeared at the doorway and was struck down by the murderer, who had thrown himself back against the wall. She was badly wounded on the head and back. The amahs and Mr. Leung Wing-suen also aroused appeared one by one, and as they arrived, were attacked and wounded. Mr. Leung Wing-suen lost an ear besides suffering other wounds.

POSSIBLE CLUE DISCOVERED

Fear then seems to have gripped the assailant after this grim drama in the darkness and he broke away from Mr. Leung and leaped to the street below from verandah, a drop of from fifteen to twenty feet. He escaped.

Police later found the weapon, an axe-shaped knife of the type used by rattan workers, which may possibly prove a valuable clue. The knife was found in the gutter in the street, having been dropped by the murderer in his precipitate flight.

Mrs. Leung and two small children were the only inmates of the flat to escape the attention of the murderer.

DISTURBED BY SQUAWKING PARROT

The list of casualties follows:

DEAD.

Leung Sze-sau, aged 15, student son of Mr. Leung Wing-suen, stabbed in the throat.

WOUNDED.

Leung Wing-suen, aged 43 years, cut severely and injuries to face. Not serious.

Chan Ping, aged 47 years, amah, injuries to head and back. Condition may be serious.

Kung Kwan, aged 43 years, domestic servant girl, slight injuries to head.

Kung Shu-hing, aged 20 years, sister of Kung Kwan and visitor to the floor, slight injuries to head.

The only person from whom any information could be obtained after the tragedy was Yip Ching, 16, a boy from Ma Tau.

JAPANESE RESUME CAMPAIGN

HEAVY FIGHTING IN NORTH MANCHURIA.

Harbin, Sept. 6. The drop in the floods is enabling the Japanese to pursue their campaign for the suppression of the anti-Manchukuo forces.

Fighting has occurred at Fuchin, only sixty-five miles from the Soviet border and also at Koshan, at the foot of the Khingan Mountains. The Japanese claim successes in all engagements, inflicting, they say, heavy casualties with slight losses themselves.—Reuter.

THE COTTON STRIKE

GOVERNMENT MAY INTERVENE

LETTER SENT TO DISPUTANTS

London, Sept. 5. The general position in the Lancashire cotton dispute shows no change for the better or for the worse, though reports that the Government will step in to put an end to the dispute have gained force.

It was announced to-day that Sir Henry Betterton, the Minister of Labour, has communicated with both parties. The contents of his letter have, however, not been revealed.

The probabilities are that it offers a suggestion which would permit the operatives to resume work pending the result of further negotiations.

On the receipt of favourable replies to the Minister's letter, an officer of the Ministry will proceed to Manchester.

PREMIER RETURNS.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, returned to London from Scotland this evening, and Sir Henry Betterton was among those who met him at the station. Sir Henry travelled with him to No. 10, Downing Street in order to inform the Premier of the latest details in the development of the Lancashire cotton strike.

T.U.C. GRANT.

The Trade Union Congress opened at Newcastle to-day and will remain in session throughout the week. Mr. John Bromley, in his presidential address, criticised the Government's handling of the economic situation and declared the right policy was not to curtail production but to increase consumption.

He denounced an economic policy which lessened the purchasing power of the great body of consumers and said the problem will only be solved by drastic action on the basis of a shorter working day and working week without a reduction of wages. Employment must be equitably shared between the workless and the overworked.

The Congress agreed to make a contribution of £1,000 to the unions engaged in the Lancashire cotton dispute.—British Wireless and Reuter.

SHANGHAI'S POWERFUL NEW BOYCOTT DRIVE

BIG ASSOCIATION IN SUPPORT OF LEAGUE COVENANT!

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

Shanghai, Sept. 6. The passage of time has not assuaged the bitterness with which certain influential Chinese elements are prosecuting the anti-Japanese boycott.

ST. LEGER SURPRISE

APRIL THE FIFTH TO RUN

MR. TOM WALLS ON A FORLORN HOPE

(Telegraph Special.)

London, Sept. 6. Despite all the rumours to the contrary, the Derby winner, April the Fifth, will go to the post for the St. Leger, according to his actor-owner, Mr. Tom Walls.

Mr. Walls's decision to run the horse has come as a great surprise to the vast majority of race-goers, the general opinion being reflected in the fact that the horse was not even mentioned at last night's call-over at the Victoria Club.

"April the Fifth leaves Goodwood for Doncaster to-morrow," Mr. Tom Walls announced late last night.

DEFINITELY WELL.

"He is definitely well and I think he is fit. He is running as a forlorn hope, but I do not think he will lose prestige and after all, the St. Leger is the St. Leger."

April the Fifth has been undergoing leg treatment at Selsley in Sussex, after a breakdown during training for the St. Leger.—Reuter.

VICTORIA CLUB BETTING.

London, Sept. 5. Orwell, despite his abject failure in the Derby, has been backed into strong favouritism for the St. Leger. To-day's call-over at the Victoria Club disclosed the following odds:

It is not difficult for a system player in his bidding to convey to partner definite information regarding the high card tricks that he holds, but no system will take care of freak distribution or the good or bad breaks of a hand.

The Bidding.

South, the dealer, started the bidding with one diamond while West passed. Players requiring one and one-half tricks for a response would also pass a diamond, but the one over one bidder kept the bidding open with the North hand. Some did bid one heart and while they were not anxious, this bid was a forcing bid for partner.

Others preferred to show weakness by bidding one no trump. East passed at all tables. When North bid one heart, South immediately responded with four hearts.

But when North bid one no trump, showing weakness, South in most cases bid two diamonds as a sign-off bid. Then North would bid two hearts to show a long heart suit but no strength and at a few tables South then took the contract to four hearts.

The Play.

Holding a hand as weak as the North hand, you are sure to be a little shaky when partner carries the contract to four hearts, but regardless of any opening that East may make, the declarer will make a small slam.

When the king of clubs was opened by East, North, the declarer, won with the ace and then took the diamond finesse. It held and he led two rounds of trump, then playing the small spade which West won with the ace. This was the only trick that East and West could win and, to the declarer's surprise, perfect breaks had allowed him not only to make his contract, but to make six odd.

Since four was the bid, only 120 was scored for tricks, and as North and South were vulnerable, the game bonus was 500 points.

The two extra tricks at duplicate bridge are scored at their bid trick value, therefore the two extra tricks counted 30 points each giving North and South a total of plus 630 on the hand.

OBITUARYDEATH OF BROTHER OF GEN.
AU YEUNG KUI

The death of Mr. Au Yeung Hien at the Yeung Woo Nursing Home yesterday at the age of 23 will be received with much regret by his friends in Hongkong. The deceased was a younger brother of General Au Yeung Kui, former Police Commissioner of Canton City and well known Chinese politician.

Mr. Au Yeung had been ill for some time and was admitted to the Yeung Woo Nursing Home about two months ago, when it was found that complications had set in following influenza.

The late Mr. Au Yeung Hien is survived by his parents, Mr. and ENJOYMENT AT THE PENINSULA HOTEL.WEEK-END FEATURES PROVE GREAT ATTRACTION.

Two outstanding functions took place over the weekend at the Peninsula Hotel, gala night in the Rose Room on Saturday and a symphonic concert in the ground floor lounge on Sunday evening which were most successful.

During the gala night, between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. two well-known Russian dancers, Miss Tania Svetlanova and Mr. Alex Sainikoff, made their debut in Hongkong in the Rose Room and gave a masterful and striking exhibition of exceedingly clever dancing from their repertoire, which the large attendance heartily acclaimed.

POLICE INSPECTOR ROBBED.FOUNTAIN PEN STOLEN FOR SECOND TIME

Detective Inspector John Murphy, attached to Police Headquarters, was robbed of his fountain pen whilst he was walking in Wing On Street on Sunday, and at the Police Court before Mr. Schofield yesterday he charged a young Chinese with larceny.

The fountain pen which the officer was carrying in his breast pocket, was stolen once before by a probationer interpreter from his desk in his office at Police Headquarters, and it was not until the article had been pawned by the thief that it was subsequently recovered.

Yesterday Inspector Murphy was walking in Wing On Street when a District Watchman who had apparently been following the defendant, saw the youth extract the pen from the Inspector's pocket.

Sub Inspector Russell, who conducted the case, informed his Worship that Inspector Murphy was not aware, at the time, that his pocket was being picked.

His Worship: I suppose he (the district watchman) asked Inspector Murphy whether he lost anything?

Inspector Murphy: No, your Worship. He produced the fountain pen and the defendant.

His Worship: I see he is young at the game as well as being young in years. He had no confederate? I suppose nobody jostled you did they?

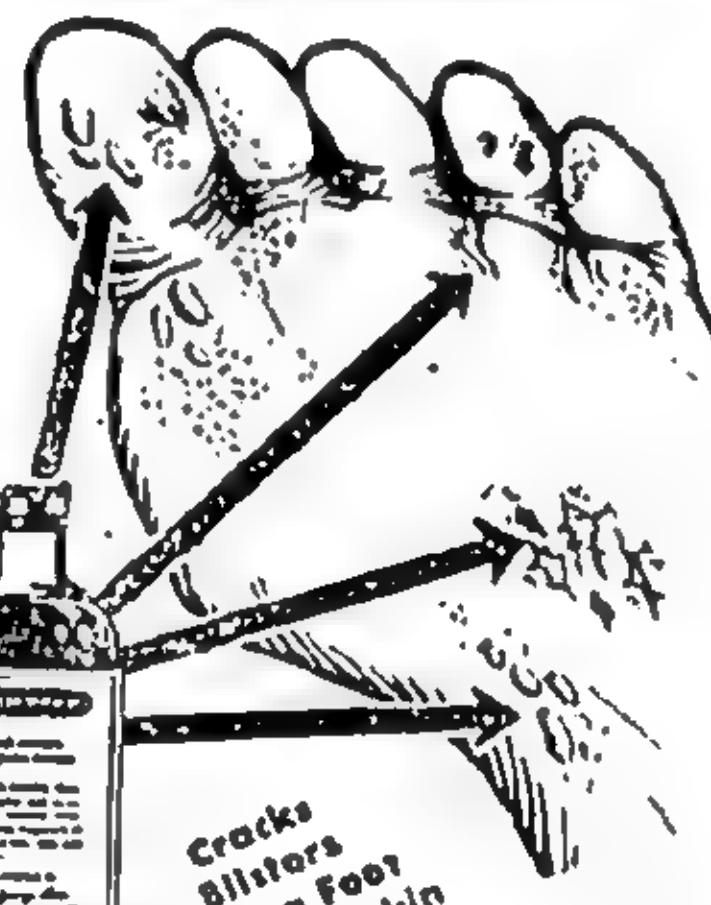

Inspector Murphy: No, your Worship.

Sentence of three months hard labour was imposed.

Other Cases.

Sentence of six months' hard labour and twenty strokes of the birch was imposed by his Worship on a Chinese who admitted a charge of snatching a purse containing 30 cents from a child which was being carried by its father.

In another case a Chinese was given three months' imprisonment for stealing five cents from the pocket of a pedestrian in Queen's Road, Central while a similar sentence was passed on a Chinese for stealing a purse from a man in Queen's Road, Central. The defendant had been banished for life from Straits Settlements as an undesirable.

For five years Mrs. Daniel A. Warren, of Glen Ridge, N.J., valiantly pleaded for a change in the zoning law which would permit her to lease her home for a store or apartment house. LEAP YEAR BRIDE by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 18-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan, and takes advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to lack money. They take cheap apartment, and her struggles with housework are distressing. Dixie Shannon, movie critic of the News, friendly with Cherry, she meets handsome Max Hartman, who is the New York editor of a magazine.

After several weeks, Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents, but they do not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

July brings an intense heat wave. Friends invite Dan to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed at the office and Cherry sets out with Pearson in his car.

CHAPTER XXXII

The hot wind whipped Cherry's hat back from her face and she caught the two sides, holding them down bonnet fashion.

"It will be cooler as soon as we get out of town," Pearson told her. He had to raise his voice above the sound of the car.

She smiled at him. "I'm cooler all ready," she said, "just thinking about having a swim. Oh, it will be wonderful to be in the water!"

Swimming was the only sport at which Cherry could feel herself even fairly well skilled. She had learned at school where swimming was a required subject. She had only two strokes and a simple running dive but she loved the water. There were no pools in Wellington except the public ones that were always crowded. She had not had a swim all summer.

"Like to play polo?" Pearson asked.

"I don't know. I've never tried it."

"I'll teach you," he promised, grinning. "Lots of fun. There's a good polo at Willow Lake. Clean sand that runs out under the water a long way. Do you dive?"

She said that she did after a fashion. Pearson began to recount swimming anecdotes.

They were out of the city now on a road dotted here and there by small dwellings. The sun was still visible over the tops of the buildings but for the first time they saw that the sky seemed darker. There were clouds in the west, grey and faintly menacing clouds. She called Pearson's attention to them.

"Do you think it may rain?" she asked.

"If it does 20,000,000 sinners are going to praise the Lord. No—I don't think there's much chance of rain, Cherry. I've figured it out there isn't ever going to be any more. After the last two weeks I don't think there's going to be any more snow. Just perpetual heat until the old globe dries up. No, I'm afraid you're letting your imagination get the better of you."

She was amused and smiled. But little later she insisted. "I did feel a raindrop! I'm sure of it."

"Gosh, I believe you're right. Well, we'll try to keep ahead of it."

Pearson increased the car's speed. There was no doubt now that a storm was coming. The grey clouds had increased. Close to the horizon they were a sullen yellowish-grey that became darker above. The sun had vanished and the wind was rising. It was a hot wind that picked up the dry dust and carried it ahead in clouds.

Cherry looked down at her fresh white dress and saw that already it was ruined. She turned to Pearson. "Maybe we should go back?" And face right into the worst of it? No, I think the best thing we can do is keep going. Never can tell about these summer storms. Some times they blow over in five minutes."

"Do you suppose Dan has started?"

Pearson glanced at his watch. "Can't tell. He was waiting for a long distance call when I left. But you needn't worry about Dan. That lad's a charmed life!"

"I wish we'd all waited and come together," Cherry said.

Pearson gave her a quick glance.

"You're not afraid, are you?" he asked.

She was but refused to admit it. The rain was falling in big drops now and the sky had darkened rapidly. Pearson drove without regard for speed limits.

Suddenly the storm burst in earnest. An ear-splitting peal of thunder was followed by flashes of sheet lightning. The rain fell in torrents. Both Cherry and Pearson were soaking wet. It was almost impossible to see through the windshield and the road ahead was like a rivulet.

There was another burst of thunder. The girl shuddered and crouched close to the seat as the countryside was illuminated by the blinding lightning.

Pearson drew the car to the side of the road, set the brakes. "We'll get the top up!" he shouted.

It took much tugging and pulling to get the top of the convertible roadster into place. Cherry helped. The wind and rain lashed about her as she struggled with strength she had not known she possessed. Her hat, her hair, every garment she wore was dripping wet.

At last they were inside with the cloth roof over their heads. Pearson turned on the headlights and they were on their way once more.

"Sorry to get you into such a jam," he mumbled.

"But it wasn't your fault."

"We should have gone back," he announced.

"Could have made it to some sort of shelter. Wait—I've just had an idea!"

He stopped the car, got out and disappeared for a moment. When he returned he was carrying something that he threw into the seat.

"Raincoat," he gasped. "Put it on."

It was a man's raincoat, old and soiled, but it was dry. Cherry wrapped the coat about her.

"You're as wet as I am," she protested.

"Never mind about me. I can stand it."

"But you're liable to take a dreadful cold!"

"Well," he said laconically, "there's nothing we can do about it except keep on until we come to some place where they'll take us in."

The houses seemed surprisingly far between. It was so dark they could not have seen a building unless there were lights at the windows.

They drove in silence. Cherry was shivering in spite of the coat.

It was difficult to see the road ahead. A dozen times the girl was sure they were on the verge of disaster.

It seemed hours before Pearson said, "We're coming to something. There's a light!"

He brushed the rain from the windshield. Ahead through the darkness there was indeed a light.

It was close to the road.

"What ever it is they've got to let us come in and get dry," Pearson said.

"If there's a telephone we'll call Dan. I don't think any of those cottages at Willow Lake have telephones."

In five minutes they had reached the building. It seemed to be an oil station. Pearson sounded the horn and the door opened. In ting out a shaft of yellow light.

"Run for it, Cherry," he said.

"I'll be right behind you."

The girl opened the door. She felt wind and rain on her head as she ran. Then she was inside a

By Joan Savoy.

Whether you are playing bridge at the club, watching a tennis match, or just waiting for someone, you will be shouldering all the style you can handle if you wear this coloured crepe frock.

The sleeves have proved that it is foolish to take only one trick when there is a whole row of intriguing methods of attracting attention, right at their elbow.

BANISHING THAT "MIDDLE-AGE" BOGEY.

By Joan Beringer.

The dowager's hump, the middle-aged spread, and many other bogeys that are the dread of not-so-young women, are considered nowadays to be quite unnecessary evils. At a musical display given in London recently an expert showed in a few movements how each disfigurement could be avoided or, if that were too late, remedied.

Many of the exercises demonstrated to me by another expert were among the simplest which we all learnt at school; but now each one has a new significance— to slenderise one particular portion of the figure.

For instance, take the elementary exercise of "heel raising." At school we looked upon it as the dullest exercise of all—merely a preliminary to the exorcisms of jingles and rope-climbing. But the older woman who practises it to-day does so with the consciousness that she is adding grace to her ankles and legs, keeping them slim and supple and allowing her to move with an elasticity which takes years off her age.

These sleeves, which are unusually large, start with a shirred raglan effect, boom tremendously at the elbow where they are gathered again, and button tightly below the elbow, finishing at a three-quarter length.

Nickle Adorns Belt.

Since lark belts, used on light frocks, succeed in removing an inch or two from the waistline—at least as far as appearances are concerned—this dress chooses a belt of bigger crepe. It is fashioned from the same rough crinkled crepe. The buckle is adorned with nickel and the buttons are made from it.

The skirt hugs the hips and flares as it nears the hemline.

The costume also comes in pastel shades or white that uses contrasting colour for its decorative effect.

Leaping for Lissomness.

Another exercise for elasticity is to spring, as high as possible, on the same spot, and a variation of this is to give two short springs and then one high one, finishing in a crouching position and then leaping up again.

"The 'dowager's hump,' that lump of flesh at the back of the neck which causes a poked head and often a double chin, requires a good deal of persevering exercise. Standing perfectly straight and swinging the arms round each shoulder in turn is good for this.

To lie on the back and pedal with both legs is an exercise which appeals more to youth than to age, but older women are performing it willingly because it is an excellent cure for the spreading waistline. Another remedy for this and for large hips is to stand with the arms stretched above the head, and to swing down to the ground, first touching the right foot with the left hand, and then vice versa. Touching the toes sideways is yet another.

This season's fashions do not demand a figure that is as flat as the proverbial board. You must have a slim waist, but it is important not to be too attenuated above this point. Women who are too slim in this respect are told to drop the head forward on to the chest, and then stretch it back as far as possible.

One of the best exercises for bust, shoulders, and neck is to stretch the arms above and slightly in front of the head, with the palms together, and then to swing them down and back until the backs of the hands touch behind the body, keeping the elbows stiff.

To Prevent Stiffness.

For the stiffness which is frequently the result of an hour of these gymnasium exercises, older women are advised to keep moving as much as possible, and not to lie down and rest for more than a few minutes afterwards.

Many London women intend to do these "middle-aged" exercises privately, arranging classes at their own houses for themselves and their friends. An important feature is that every exercise, even the simplest, is done to a musical accompaniment.

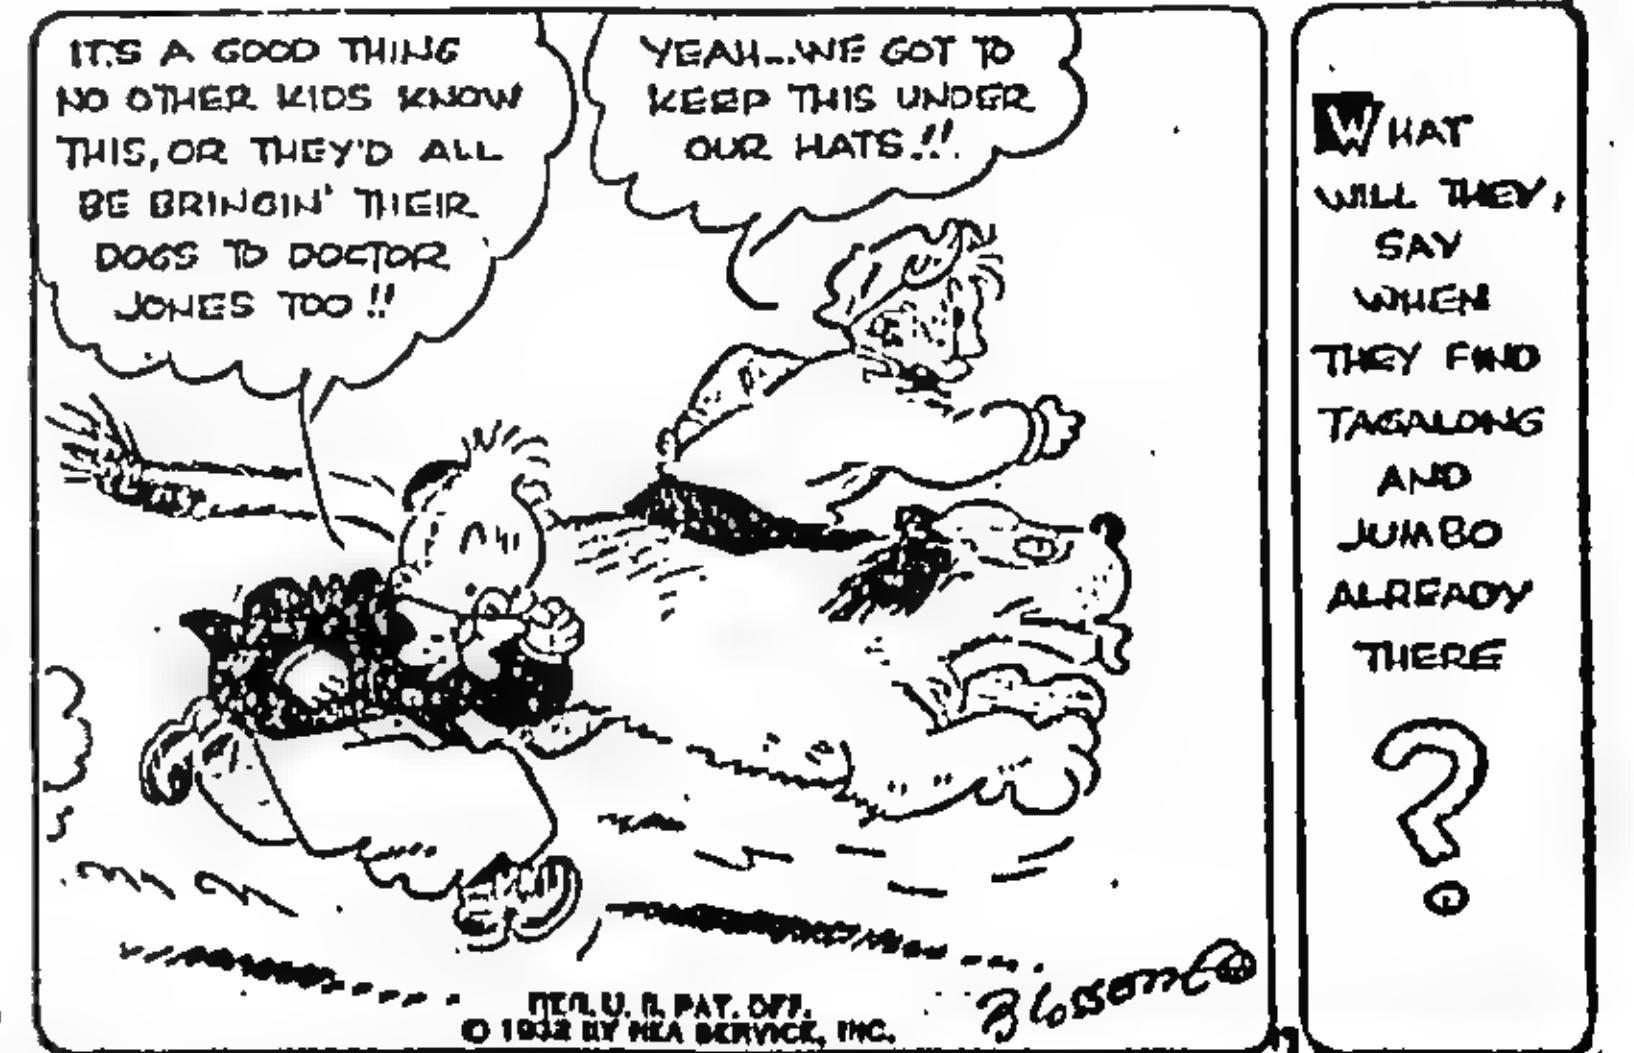

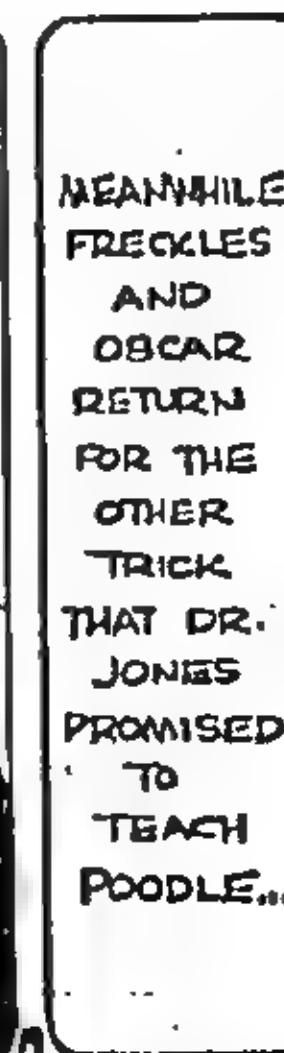

BRODERIE ANGLAISE.

The popularity of broderie anglaise still continues, and dainty, pouch-shaped handbags are the latest models to be made of this material. The bags are made in two sizes and various pastel shades, while necklaces, cut in a similar manner, are designed to carry out the scheme.

HOSPITAL NEEDS

Appointed more than two years ago to make a comprehensive investigation into the hospital and nursing services of the Shanghai Foreign Settlement, a representative Commission has now made its report. The whole ground has been most thoroughly covered, and the recommendations made involve many changes, notably increased hospital facilities, with special reference to the need for better isolation provision in the matter of infectious diseases. It is also suggested that, in view of the financial stringency confronting the Municipal Council, an amusement tax be brought into operation in order to augment revenue, in which connexion it is pointed out that the merits of taxation of this nature are undoubted, and if it were possible to hypothecate revenue from this source exclusively for hospital purposes, it would be likely to meet with a better reception from the general public.

One of the subjects reported on is of particular interest to Hongkong, inasmuch as we have the same problem with which to deal, namely, the treatment of tuberculosis cases. The Committee which had this matter in hand found considerable difficulty in reaching a satisfactory conclusion in regard to accommodation for sufferers from this disease. Thus, while making certain definite recommendations for the provision of isolation hospitals, it considers that the solution of the tuberculosis problem can only be reached when some form of co-operation between the three Municipalities, and possibly the Chinese Government as well, is secured, so that a sufficiently large sanatorium may be provided without penalising the International Settlement. The Committee has suggested that, if possible, a sanatorium with 200 beds should be provided, admission to be limited, as far as possible, to genuine residents. At the same time, it was agreed that much could be done along the lines of the dispensary system, using selected branch offices as a nucleus of the work.

It will be seen that the problem in Shanghai is somewhat complicated by the multiplicity of authorities, it being felt that the treatment of tuberculosis is more a matter for the State than the Municipality, which should normally limit its efforts to diagnosis and prevention. Here in Hongkong, of course, there are not these complications. It is true that we have a large influx of sufferers from other localities, but we are a self-contained community, with a Government possessing authority over the whole Colony. This, of itself, simplifies the matter, although, of course, the problem is not without its special difficulties. It is obvious, however, that there is a very real need for better facilities in the treatment of the disease, which claims fully fifty lives every week.

Admittedly, prevention is better than cure, but prevention in this matter involves better housing conditions and a raising of the standard of life. These desiderata will come in due course, but in the meantime we have the sufferers in our midst. Not only in their own interests do we need to see that they are given facilities for sanatoria treatment, but also on the interests of the health of the whose community. Financial considerations may at the moment preclude the possibility of early action, but we should like to feel that the Government is fully alive to the necessities and will, in the not distant future, take some definite steps to bring a ray of hope to the sufferers from this dread disease.

Russian Collectivist Farms

The collective farms in which some 15,000,000 Russian peasant families now are organized represent a huge crucible of social and economic experimentation. Nothing the Soviets have done in recent years is perhaps better worth studying than this attempt to change agriculture from an individualist to a collective basis, because it has been undertaken at a time when farming all over the world is hard hit by the heavy fall in the prices of agricultural products and apparently is obliged to make readjustments to the new conditions created by the use of such large machines as the tractor and the combine. The main object in collective farming has always been to smash the system of small peasant proprietorship and to organise the Russian peasants in co-operative groups which would till large units of land with the aid of modern machinery furnished by the State, the whole enterprise being under fairly definite State control. This idea has been carried into practice ruthlessly. Peasants who were too prosperous on their own holdings to fit into the new scheme were, in the expressive Communist phrase, "liquidated as a class," and the majority of the peasants (62 per cent. at last accounts) have been organised in collective farms. But there have been continual changes and experiments in the organisation of the farms and the compensation of the members for their labour. For the independent farmer, the very fact of ownership creates a stimulus to work which the member of the collective farm lacks. The private owner punches no time clock when it is a question of getting in the hay before a threatened rain. His own interest makes him see that his horse is properly fed and stabled. In these and other details of farm life the collective farms leave much to be desired. The history of the Soviet collective farms has been the history of a search for stimuli which would effectively replace the lost sense of ownership of personal property. The history of the Soviet collective farms has been the history of a search for stimuli which would effectively replace the lost sense of ownership of personal property. Collective farms which had become almost unmanageably large into smaller autonomous units, where personal direction and responsibility could be more easily enforced. During 1930 many collective farms divided up such grain as they did not surrender to the State according to the number of "eaters." In other words, the largest families received the most bread, regardless of how much work they performed. This system has now been strictly forbidden, as conducive to low productivity of labour, and a piecework method of payment, based on the amount and importance of work performed, has been substituted. Now another innovation, the so-called brigade system, is being introduced in the collective farms. Under this system a group of peasants is allotted a given area of land, with the necessary horses and machinery. Whatever is produced will be reckoned to the credit of the brigade. It remains to be seen whether this experiment will restore the sense of personal responsibility that is apt to disappear along with the right of individual land ownership through the latest reports certainly do not reveal any advance.

And while men may worry over the problem of how the Ruritarians are going to balance their budget, women will try to work out how on earth the Browns manage to put up the show they do on Brown's income. Which, believe me, is just as much of a puzzle as working out any nation's budget plans.

Dress, of course, does play a large part in woman's conversation, but it is by no means the empty chatter that we imagine. WOMEN TALK ABOUT MORE THAN CLOTHES

MAY EVEN MENTION THEIR HUSBANDS

BY L. C. MOORE

MOST men seem to have a ridiculous idea that when women get together they can talk about nothing but clothes and domestic matters.

Undoubtedly the belief is survival from Victorian days, when to be considered equal to the strain of "gentlemen's conversation" was indeed a signal honour for a woman.

As a matter of fact, the positions are reversed to-day, and very few men could hold their own in a company which otherwise consisted entirely of women.

Discussing Science.

Men, when they are together, discuss science more than anything else. I mean the science of Jack Hobbs, or the Arsenal, according to the season. But women go in for art. They will talk for hours about the art of looking ten years younger than they are, a subject in which men would be absolutely lost; so far their ideas in that direction haven't gone beyond buying a bottle of hair-restorer.

I admit that men will often talk upon grave matters such as the World Crisis. There isn't a man in the country who doesn't know how to solve it; it is really an intellectual treat to hear them discussing national income and expenditure:

Household Economy.

Their wives do not fly quite so high as that. When they get on to economics they are more parochial. They ponder the best way to make a pound buy twenty-five shillingsworth of goods, and so balance the household budget.

Not such a big subject, as I have said, but the two problems are very similar. In fact the only difference, so far as I can see, is that the women are solving theirs.

Any man will tell you that the reason trade is so bad nowadays is because wholesale prices are too high. Or it may be that they're too low. I'm not sure myself, but I'd guarantee to talk for hours on that subject with anybody who cares to be an appreciative audience.

Women haven't time for that sort of conversation. They don't do things wholesale. But what they try to sort out when they are talking is why milk cannot come down a penny without butter going up twopence. I'd like to meet the man who could take an intelligent part in a discussion on those lines.

And while men may worry over the problem of how the Ruritarians are going to balance their budget, women will try to work out how on earth the Browns manage to put up the show they do on Brown's income. Which, believe me, is just as much of a puzzle as working out any nation's budget plans.

Dress, of course, does play a large part in woman's conversation, but it is by no means the empty chatter that we imagine. to tell her husband about; the longer the list, the greater her chance of getting something new for herself.

There is one topic, a favourite with men, which is barred to women. I refer to bosses. There is nothing the average man likes to talk about so much as the way he put old Stick-in-the-mud in his place, and the things he said to him.

Letting off Steam.

Wives cannot indulge in similar stories, because, of course, they have no bosses in these days. So what they do instead is tell one another the things they would like to say to their maids. They must let off steam in some way, because you can't treat a maid like a boss; you've got to be careful. The wise husband, never attempts to take part in a chat of this kind; he knows he'd put his foot in it in five minutes.

What women talk about most of all, however, are their husbands. Each one tries to convince the rest that she married the most wonderful man in the world. And she can talk quite convincingly on that topic.

Just a Husband.

The ordinary, common or garden husband, accustomed to hearing quite a different story, may find it difficult to believe this statement, but I assure him it is a fact. Women are queer when they come to discuss the men they have chosen for their own.

Lest, however, he may be in danger of getting a swelled head on the strength of it, I had better point out that in precisely the same way each wife will boast that she picked up the best remnant in the bargain basement.

FIRST CATCH YOUR MOSQUITO

By R. T. LEWIS.

Often, these evenings we become conscious of loud buzzing noises in the air.

These may be caused either by an aeroplane returning to Kai Tak or a mosquito.

Should either alight on your person, it becomes a matter for grave concern, and while the rash from the mosquito is perhaps preferable, every precaution should be taken to avoid it.

There are two types of mosquito which should be discouraged. These are the anopheles maculipennis and the theobaldia annulata. With such distinct names recognition should be easy.

Mr. Anopheles Maculipennis is the malaria carrier, and while in his own person he does very little harm, his wife is, as wives often are, the cause of much mischief.

The males are vegetarians; the females bloodsuckers of the worst type. The ladies of this class are capable of carrying malaria from one person to another and are the chief cause of its prevalence abroad.

The other kind is dangerous because of the blood poisoning which they set up after biting.

In all cases, these gentlemen prefer ponds; the more stagnant the better. When they see running streams they sing, "Oh flow, why do you go," and fly off. They start life below the surface, taking the plunge when mature and flying away as fully developed mosquitoes.

The essential thing to do when combating the mosquito is to catch him young. In other words prevent them leaving their stagnant pools.

Just Waiting Time.

The method of waiting by the silent pools until the mosquito appears, when it can be hit sharply between the ears and sent back to the vile depths from whence it sprung, unwept, unhonoured and unsung," or rather unmeting, leads to much waste of lime.

Neither is it effective to drain the water into a neighbour's allotment. The correct method is to pour over the pools a thin layer of paraffin. The larva, when old enough to leave home, rushes to the surface, where it gets so well oiled that it rolls back into the pond and drowns itself.

There is another type of mosquito known as the culex pipiens. This insect is not on the water wagon, but goes into winter quarters in cupboards and dark corners.

The treatment in this case is to spray the insects with insecticide while it is having its winter sleep. This may seem cruel to the sensitive humanitarian to kill innocent mosquitoes in their sleep. But it saves them from the dan-

SHIP'S MASTER FINEDPIRACY ORDINANCE BREACH

Capt. F. Green, master of the China Navigation Company's steamer Kaying, was this morning fined $50 before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy for a breach of the Suppression of Piracy Ordinance by leaving the harbour at an hour not approved by the Hon. Inspector General of Police on August 15.

Detective-Inspector Elston said the Kaying left Hongkong with passengers on August 15. The fact that she carried passengers on this trip brought her under the Suppression of Piracy Ordinance. The police were notified that she was sailing at 3 p.m. that day, but when a search-party was sent on board, it was found that she was not leaving until 6 p.m. Another search-party was sent at 8 p.m., but the ship was again delayed and did not leave until 8 p.m. As a result of this delay of five hours, the police issued a summons against Capt. Green.

Asked what he had to say, Capt. Green said he took out his clearance papers from the Harbour Office at 11 a.m. on the day in question. He had over 1,000 tons of cargo to take, and it was obvious that the master of a ship could not possibly tell to within 10 minutes what time he would be able to get his ship away. He thought he could get away at 6 p.m., but when he got on the ship at this hour, he found that a lot of cargo had yet to be taken.

His Worship (to Inspector Elston). You mean a ship cannot delay sailing after being searched? Inspector Elston: Yes, your Worship, but only with a reasonable excuse.

What is a reasonable excuse? Something wrong with the ship's engine or the weather, your Worship.

THE REAL DANGER.

Inspector Elston went on to say that the police did not summons every master for delaying. Every case was taken on its merits. In this case, the police issued a summons not because of the inconvenience caused to them. They didn't mind that at all. What they were objecting to was that after the ship had been searched, the master allowed two hours for possible pirates to get on board. That was the danger in this case.

His Worship.—What is wrong in the ship sailing at 8 p.m.?

Inspector Elston.—That hour was not approved by the I.G.P.

His Worship.—I'm afraid I can't understand. Then if the I.G.P. does not approve of the time of sailing, Capt. Green cannot help committing an offence.

Capt. Green.—That's just it.

His Worship.—It's a master for you, I'm afraid. The fine is $50.

SUNDAY CARGO WORKINGJAPANESE MASTER FINED

A fine of $200, or one month's imprisonment, was imposed by the Hon. Comdr. Hole, at the Marine Court this morning, on Captain Nagakawa, master of the s.s. Chong Lee, on a charge of having worked cargo on board the vessel at 10 a.m. on Saturday, August 7, without the permission of the Harbour Master.

Sergeant Macnamara said he boarded the Chong Lee and spoke to two or three men, presumably officers. He asked the Chief Officer for the working permit, and informed them that they were working general cargo. They agreed that it was general cargo. The cargo was being worked from the No. 3 and No. 4 holds into junks. They had no Sunday permit.

The accused admitted that the boxes contained apples and potatoes, which he said he had brought from Chefoo. But he contended that as they came under the heading of "fruit," it was not necessary to take out a Sunday working permit.

Comdr. Hole, after referring to the Ordinance, said if the goods were brought from Chefoo and were not placed in cold storage, then he could not regard them as for immediate consumption.

The accused admitted that the cargo was not in cold storage.

LADIES GOLFRESULT OF MEDAL POOL

The Medal Pool played for at Deep Water Bay during July and August was won by Miss C. B. Robinson with a score of 78-0-0. There were 42 cards taken out.

Mrs. Lissaman qualified for the Captain's Cup at Happy Valley in August. Score—111-82-178.

ARMED ROBBERY SEQUELHUSBAND'S DEATH PRESUMED

At midnight on July 8th, a band of 20 armed robbers entered a house in Sheung Sui, New Territories, kidnapped the husband and his son-in-law, and held them for $120,000 ransom.

Neither husband nor son-in-law were released, and an application was made to the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) in the Supreme Court this morning for leave to presume the death of the husband.

A joint affidavit in the names of wife and daughter was read by Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. L. D'Almada, who appeared for them. It detailed events on the night of the kidnapping.

When the robbers entered the house, the husband was in a rear room. Hearing cries for assistance, he rushed out with a sportsgun. The robbers, however, shielded themselves with his family, and, after sheltered advance, quickly overpowered him.

After locking the family in a rear room, the robbers escaped, taking the two men with them.

RANSOM BARGAINING.

Several days later, the wife was informed that the robbers would accept $120,000 for her husband's release. She met their representative and offered $1,000.

After intense bargaining, the robbers reduced their price to $18,000 and the wife increased her offer to $5,000.

At this time, husband and son-in-law suddenly disappeared from their prison. It was learnt that they were recaptured later, but communication with the robbers was not continued. Husband and son-in-law had not been heard of since.

Mr. Sheldon explained that no will had been made, and asked leave to swear the husband's death.

The Chief Justice granted the application.

A CHANCE FOR CHILDRENPRIZES IN INTERESTING COMPETITION

Many children have derived great pleasure and a lucky few very charming prizes from the series of competitions which Messrs. Gilman & Co. have been running in the Hongkong Telegraph during the last few weeks.

Each fortnight there are two prizes, a camera for boys, and a bag, or other useful gift, for girls, and those who have been fortunate, or perhaps we should say clever, enough to win them, report how happy they are as a result of their efforts.

Competition No. 4, the prize-winners in which were announced in this paper last Saturday, was particularly interesting, and there were shoals of entries; so many, that judging was very difficult. The right answer was:

W. I. C. h. e. S.
R. o. c. O.
I. g. n. A. n. A.
G. u. a. d. L. o. n. P.
H. s. i. T. t. e. W.
T. r. e. A. c. l. E.
S. e. c. R. e. T.

Now that the schools are re-opening, there is an opportunity for children to co-operate in their efforts to solve the competitions, which will be made a little bit more difficult. And parents are not forbidden to offer suggestions. One competitor, Miss Jenny Fellowes, has entered for nearly all the puzzles so far, and her tries have been consistently good. Try to see if you can beat her in Competition No. 5, which was set last Saturday, and will be repeated at the end of this week. Entries must be in by the 16th.

ATHLETICS GO CRASH IN DOUBLE-HEADERYankees Now Leading by Twelve Games

New York, Sept. 5. The Yankees gave their only serious challengers for the American League a severe jolt to-day, beating them in both games of a double header. Twice the Athletics outhit the Yankees, but the future champions bunched theirs to better purpose.

The matches were played before a crowd of 71,000 spectators who roared with delight when Babe Ruth hit a home run to give the Yankees a snatch victory in the first game, in which Simmons also hit for the circuit. Dickey made the important hit for the Yankees in the night cap.

All teams engaged, in both leagues, played double headers today. Washington, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia Phillies and Boston Braves proving completely triumphant, while Chicago split with Cincinnati and Detroit with Chicago.

Berger (Boston Braves) 2, Ott 2. Terry (Giants), Hurst (Phillies), Whitney (Phillies), Gehring (Detroit), Campbell (St. Louis Browns), Averill 2, Vosmik (Indians) and Burns (St. Louis Browns) hit home runs.

Newark to-day won the International League pennant. Results:

SHIP'S DOCTOR ROBBEDTWO' YOUTHS SENT TO PRISON

A Chinese detective's vigilance in Yaumati yesterday afternoon led to the appearance of two youths before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of stealing a pair of spectacles, a silver watch and a clock, the property of the doctor of the Jardine steamer Yuensang.

Inspector Elston said the theft took place at noon yesterday, and at 1 p.m. the first defendant was seen trying to pawn the clock in Yaumati. He was arrested and told the police that he and another youth had gone to board the Yuensang, where they stole the articles from the doctor's cabin. The police last night kept a lookout for the other culprit and at 8 p.m. caught him trying to pawn the spectacles.

The Inspector told his Worship that the ship was lying alongside Kowloon Wharf at the time of the theft. Once people had got past the quartermaster on the gangway, it was very difficult to control them.

rushed into the front where they too were attacked by the intruder.

One of them was heard to shout for assistance and Mrs. Leung, in the back cubicle, aroused her husband. He grappled with the thief, who was using a knife freely. Mr. Leung had numerous injuries inflicted upon him before the intruder finally broke away, rushed to the verandah, and jumped into the street.

Mrs. Leung who later recounted her experience to the police was not able to throw any light on the actual happenings, either when the first attack was made or subsequently. She intimated that she was awakened by her amah, Chan Ping, shouting. When she aroused her husband, he picked up a wooden ruler and went outside.

GHASTLY SHOCK.
A scuffle, suggesting that her husband was fighting with somebody, was heard by Mrs. Leung from her cubicle. On finally going to the door of the room she saw a man rush to the verandah. She went into the sitting room and, with a terrible shock, became aware of the ghastly tragedy that had been enacted and saw her eldest son lying in a pool of blood.

THE POLICE.
The Police were soon on the premises, Inspector H.E. Roger, officer in charge of the Bay View Police Station, Chief Detective Inspector A. N. Reynolds and Mr. A. R. S. Major being among those to visit the flat.

The murdered boy's body was removed to the mortuary and the injured were taken to the Government Civil Hospital. The servant girl and her sister have since been discharged but the others are still detained for treatment.

AT THE KING'S.America Finds Another Tennis Wonder*Frankie Parker Hailed as Future Champion

Frankie Parker, America's latest coach, who had taught Ellsworth lawn tennis discovery, who will be seen at Wimbledon next year, is the most picturesque boy star ever thrown up by municipal courts.

His story reads like fiction. He is a Pole of humble birth, an orphan. His real name is Plenjakowski (pronounced Plenyakowski). He is 16½ years of age, stands 5 ft. 7 ins., and weighs 135 lbs.

When Frankie was a year old his father was killed while driving a Detroit dump cart, and his mother worked bravely to keep the family in bare necessities. Two brothers are now out of work, and the third is a waiter in a small eating house.

Before reaching his teens Frankie found an old tennis racket in a dust bin. Somehow he came by an uncovered rubber ball. And there was nearby an accommodating wall. That is how this new lawn tennis sensation began.

BACKYARDS TO PARKS.

From backyard walls to the public parks courts was the next step. Frankie Parker had genius, a marvelous eye. He soon began to compete in the Boys' Tournament in the parks.

The family moved to Milwaukee, where in the mid-west courts of the America. No fireworks or hysterics, he caddied at the golf club, tries, just brilliant tennis.

His concentration and anticipation go hand-in-hand; that is the secret of Frankie's iron-man control.

Then came the dramatic stroke which transformed Frankie into a fortunate youth. Mercer Beasley has nicknamed him "Little strong silent man."

WONDERFUL CONTROL.

"His controlled speed is the amazing thing about Frankie," said Beasley. "He is still growing. His reach will improve, but for his weight he already has a first service amazingly fast and deftly placed."

Parker is going east for the first time in August; and he is confidently expected to make fresh tennis history.

Already he is the talkless wonder of the mid-west courts of the America. No fireworks or hysterics, he caddied at the golf club, tries, just brilliant tennis.

His concentration and anticipation go hand-in-hand; that is the secret of Frankie's iron-man control.

Then came the dramatic stroke which transformed Frankie into a fortunate youth. Mercer Beasley has nicknamed him "Little strong silent man."

AUSTRALIA V.
THE WORLD*NEW CRITICISM
OF ENGLISH TEST TEAM

It was bound to come. Questions are being very seriously put to Selectors about the inclusion of Indians and an Australian in the England cricket team due to leave for Australia in September.

K. S. Duleepshahji has been selected to go to Australia together with the Nawab of Patanji, another Indian, and G. O. Allen, the Australian.

A writer in a Sunday paper comments as follows:

"Because a precedent has been set up in the past there is no reason why the precedent should be followed; no good reason, why the precedent should be extended. Let us suppose that we take these three players to Australia, and that they play their part in winning back for us the 'Ashes.'

"What will Australia say? Australia will say, quite rightly, that they weren't beaten by England at all, and what will be our answer to the jibe? Will it be a sufficient answer for us—an answer which will give us complete satisfaction—when we say that other than English people have played for England in the past?

"Even if it is true that we have no batsman capable of doing for England what 'Duleep' and the Nawab can do in the batting line-up, even if it is true that we have no other bowler who might do for us in Australia what G. O. Allen will do for us—is that enough? It is not enough for me."

"Personally, I would rather see 11 English-born players lose every test match by an innings than an England team recruited from India, Australia, and possibly other places, win back the 'Ashes.'

"The alternative, in my view, to playing the very fine cricketers mentioned in an England side is to alter the title of the coming Test matches—to call them, not Australia against England, but Australia against the world.

"But for the moment the title is Australia v. England. Why not live up to it?"

ANOTHER ATTEMPT ON CHANNEL
SWIMMER FORCED TO GIVE UP

Dover, Aug. 30.—M. Adrian Kamar, medical student, made an attempt yesterday morning to cross the English Channel from Cape Gris Nez. However, after 14 hours of hard effort, the swimmer had to abandon the enterprise 20½ miles away from Dover on account of a violent thunderstorm which broke out along the British coast. The swimmer climbed into the motor boat which accompanied him, and

PRENN HAILED AS LEADING PLAYER
RANKED AS EUROPE'S
NO. 1 NET STAR.

London, Aug. 18.—Daniel Prent can be rightly described on his 1932 match performances as the first lawn tennis player in Europe. He kept out of the limelight until the closing stages of the Davis Cup competition. He had been training methodically and with an immense purpose.

Then came his smashing defeat of de Stefani, the Italian Davis Cup player. Yet none accepted the hint of coming event.

SENSATIONAL WINS.

Quickly this was followed up by his sensational victories over the two British Davis Cup players—H. W. Austin and F. J. Perry. That this was no meteoric interlude was proved by his smashing defeat of F. X. Shields (U.S.A.) in the Interzone final round when the United States defeated Germany by 3 matches to 2. His newfound form was confirmed by the great fight he put up against H. E. Vines.

His 1932 scalps are thus—Stefani, Austin, Perry, Shields. Undoubtedly he is Europe's No. 1 player for 1932.

THE "DROP-SHOT."

Prent is 28 years of age—by profession, a doctor of engineering. He has black hair, is thick-set and in court gets about with a shambling gait.

His game is of the solid type: great accuracy in the control of the ball, a genius for countering the biggest speed. Also he has developed an amazing proficiency in the drop-shot. Budding champions should note that point.

As neither Raven or Brown were really pressed, it is anticip-

Mixed Doubles*Broken Hill.

An amusing case of a man impersonating a woman is reported from a suburban tennis club, a few members of which have been informed of the trick—but the joke is still on the members of the opposing club, who were defeated in a match.

Finding that the club had four men and two women for the match, instead of three of each sex, one male member arranged to impersonate a woman and make up the team.

"She" was introduced as a girl from the bush and though quick thinking was necessary at one or two awkward moments, the part was played perfectly.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

"Why not try K. Singh also?"

Sir,—While reading the newspaper dated Sept. 6th I came across the article written by Fair's Fair which referred to the selected teams that are going to play on Wednesday the 7th. I quite agree with Fair's opinion. The players who deserved a trial were omitted again, K. H. Wong the goal keeper of the St. Andre's and the man who represented the "Rest" in the Mamao Tournament against the Radio Sports Club is a fine goalkeeper. The other player is P. Singh the brilliant right back of the Radio Sports Club.

Referring to the trials last Wednesday, I was rather disappointed. Firstly G. Singh the centre forward had little or no support from the two inside forwards. As an inside-left K. Singh (Radio) would have been a better choice. He is a player with clean tactics, brilliant at outside left, and a player who seldom misses a goal. His combination with G. Singh is worth while watching. It was through his fine combination that G. Singh scored so many for the Radio. Yours, etc.

The Scourge of the East.

Malaria has always been, and
probably will be for many years to come, the scourge of those who live in the East. The most distressing feature in the obstinate way in which it remains in the system after attacks have subsided, leaving the sufferer weak and depressed.

After a malarial attack, treatment should be undertaken to free the
system from the germs that remain and which have become temporally dormant. This is essential if recurrence is to be prevented.

In order to accomplish this the bloodstream which has become depleted and thin should be built up anew, made rich and pure
in order to enable it to destroy the parasites within itself.

For this purpose Dr. Williams'
Pink Pills, the world-famous blood
and nerve tonic pills, have proved remarkably efficacious in countless cases. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills comprise a British physician's prescription and, by a process of oxygenization, increase,
enrich and purify the bloodstream.
In hot countries everywhere they are the ideal tonic for sufferers from malarial and other recurring fevers. All chemists and medicine dealers can supply you. Refuse substitutes.

MAN AND WOMAN KILLED AT KOWLOON

A man and a woman, Lin Yuet and Chow Tse, were killed yesterday afternoon when a motor lorry dived into the ditch near the Kowloon Hospital. They were labourers employed by the Foo Loong contracting firm.

The lorry, laden with labourers, was returning from Mataukok shortly before 6 p.m. It is said that the driver turned sharply in order to avoid a vehicle coming in the other direction, but could not prevent the lorry dashing into the ditch, about 10 feet deep.

KWANGSI BANK EXPANSION

HONGKONG OFFICE OPENED

Industrial expansion in Kwangsi, improvement in its educational and communications systems, and success in disbandment, were loudly praised by speakers at the opening ceremony of the Hongkong office of the new Bank of Kwangsi, which was performed by Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, this morning. The function, held at Gloucester Building, was attended by leading merchants, bankers and Chinese Government officials.

The Bank of Kwangsi has its head office in Nanning with paid-up capital amounting to $3,500,000, and has branches in all the leading cities of Kwangsi.

Addressing the meeting, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said the Hongkong office of the Bank had the support financially both of the Government and the people. He was impressed much by the modern organisation, and the experience of its officials, which gave an assurance of success.

MODEL PROVINCE.

The completion of the motor road between Kweilin and Wu-chow, and many roads linking other towns, the success of the disbandment scheme, resulting in the Government cutting down its troops by a half, the official promotion of industries, and the keenness of the Government in encouraging the expansion of education were referred to by the speaker, who added that Kwangsi could rightly be called the Model Province of China, with these remarkable developments to its credit. The Government in its budget had succeeded in devoting more funds to reconstruction and education than to expenditure on the army.

Commenting on the opening of the Hongkong office, Mr. Wong Kwong-tin said the ideal geographical position of Hongkong and its extensive trade connexions with Wuchow, Nanning and the whole of Kwangsi justified a full representation of the Bank in Hongkong. He concluded by wishing the Bank every success in its career.

The Directors of the Bank, General Li Chung-yan, the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow, the Hon. Mr. S. W. Tao, and Dr. C. C. Wu also addressed the gathering.

INDIA REFORM PROCEDURE

LATEST GOVERNMENT MOVE

London, Sept. 5. A modification of the India constitutional reforms procedure was announced to-day in the Legislative Assembly, Simla, by the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon.

This modification is designed to meet the circumstances which, owing to resignations and through other causes, have arisen to prevent the assembling of a consultative committee of the Round Table Conference for consideration of questions still outstanding.

Lord Willingdon recalled that the Secretary of State, Sir Samuel Hoare, announced recently that His Majesty's Government, after they had formulated their specific recommendations for Indian constitutional reform, had decided to set up a joint Select Committee of Parliament to examine the proposals in consultation with Indian representatives.

His Majesty's Government had hoped, in the interests of speed, that no further formal discussions would be necessary in London before these proposals were formulated, but they were prepared to arrange for such discussions if the deliberations in India of the consultative committee proved less conclusive than was hoped. Since this announcement, it had become clear it was not possible to look to the consultative committee for the contribution anticipated from it, and consequently, in order to place His Majesty's Government in possession of material they would require for forming their proposals, further discussions in London would be necessary.

Lord Willingdon then announced that the Government had decided to invite a small body of Indians to London, the object of the discussions being to arrive at agreement upon as large a number of points as possible.

As already indicated by the Secretary of State, the Government will subsequently present, for consideration of the Joint Select Committee and Parliament, specific recommendations, including the points which have been agreed on and will, of course, support them.—British Wireless.

GROCERY SHOP ROBBED

FOKI STABBED IN FACE

In alleged collaboration with a foki of the premises, four or five men gained admission to the Man Chuen Yuen grocery shop, of 49, Queen's Road West early, this morning, and decamped with a haul of $250 in money after one of the inmates had received a stab wound in the face.

From information gathered from the master of the premises, Fu Fook-yuen, some time about 3 o'clock this morning four or five men armed with three daggers and one revolver entered the shop through the front door which was opened by a foki. They then bound the other inmates and ransacked the premises.

One foki was stabbed in the right side of the face by an intruder, but his injury is not serious. After the men had escaped, a butcher's knife was found on the premises.

The foki who is said to have admitted the robbers has since absconded, it being stated that he left immediately after opening the door.

SILVER MARKET UNCERTAIN

The Hongkong dollar rose to 1s. 4¹/₂d. this morning, but the local market is quiet, with the outlook uncertain.

In London, silver advanced 3/16dha. India and China bought, and there were small offerings. After the official fixing, the market ruled easy, due to small selling.

There is no quotation from New York, the market being closed yesterday on account of a holiday.

SURPLUS PRODUCE TO BE WITHHELD

Washington, Sept. 5. All wheat and cotton controlled by the Government stabilisation organisations and the American Cottons Co-operative Association will be withheld from the markets until 1933, the chairman of the Federal Farm Board announced to-day.

The Grain Stabilisation Corporation owns three million bushels of wheat.

Of 650,000 bales which the Cotton Stabilisation Corporation proposed to market before July 31st, 1933, nearly half is sold, but the remaining stocks will be immediately withdrawn until March 3rd, 1933, except certain small amounts already consigned to foreign markets and such cotton as may be sold at 12 cents or more per pound.

The Cotton Co-operative Association has two million bales, which it will not sell until August 1st, 1933.

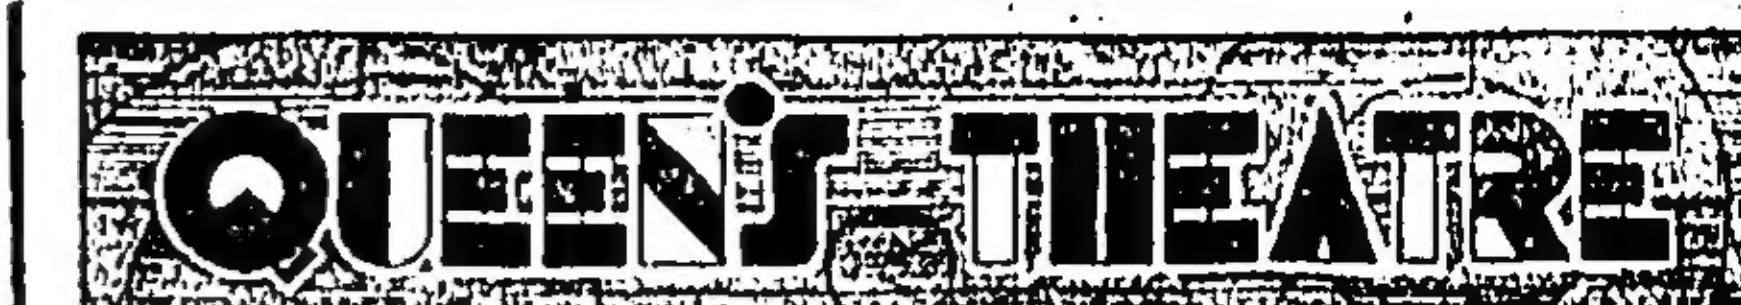

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is loaning the cotton industry $650,000,000 to permit the withholding of its stocks.—Reuters.
